P R E F A C E.

In the performance of this work I have availed myself of the records of the Massachusetts archives, and by the kindness of the town clerk I have had the records of the town, many books, magazines, and papers of early settlers, and the traditional information from aged persons that have passed away, and from many still living. It affords me great pleasure to acknowledge the generous aid received from kind friends, and to them I tender my sincere thanks.

I have tried to avoid the error of conflicting statements. If mistakes are detected, they are such as would naturally occur in a cento of so many authors. The genealogies of the families are not complete, as they do not extend in the records in full up to this date. The family records that are complete have been obtained, for the last ten years, by personal knowledge, and prior to this by the town records, and in other ways to which I have made reference. I hope the perusal of its pages may be of interest to the native born, and also to the stranger who may spend his summers on this beautiful island.

In writing this History I have received great assistance from Hon. Joseph Williamson, of Belfast, and Hon. Joseph W. Porter, of Bangor, members of the Maine Historical Society, and of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society. These gentlemen are acknowledged authorities in all matters relating to the early settlers of this town and their descendants. Without their assistance I should not have been able to put this in print. I feel old age coming on, and if in after years any historical value is gathered from the annals of Islesborough, I shall be amply rewarded for my labor.

I am also under great obligations to Mr. L. H. Murch, of Belfast, for valuable assistance, and to Messrs. Winsor and Dixon, of the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, for favors. It has required a great deal more time and labor to perform this work than was first anticipated. The information could not be obtained without expense and trouble. It was not done for a mercenary motive, and I do not expect to realize any pecuniary benefit. After the materials were accumulated I was undecided whether to put this in print, but by the advice of friends I have concluded to do so, for the benefit of the inhabitants and their descendants. The manuscript has been read by competent authority, and the work must stand or fall on its own merits.

I now submit the History of Islesborough to my fellow townsmen, with its errors, hoping it may be accepted, in lieu of a better one that may be written in after years.

JOHN P. FARROW.

History of Islesborough.

CHAPTER I.

DESCRIPTION OF ISLESBOROUGH.

THE town of Islesborough is beautifully situated on Penobscot Bay. Its extreme length is nearly thirteen miles, and it varies in width from three rods to two miles, without any very high hills or deep valleys. Its area is six thousand acres. It was formerly named Longue Island, being so designated on the map of Eman Bowen, geographer to King William III of England, 1747.

Capt. Benjamin Church* made his third expedition to Maine in 1692, and arrived in Penobscot Bay in August. He landed on Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, where he found a few French and Indians. They fled over to Long Island in fair sight of Church, and got away from him, as he had no boats suitable for the chase. He followed over to Long Island, where he found more French and Indians, who also fled. His boats were no match for their canoes. He seized considerable plunder here, mostly beaver and moose skins. He soon after sailed away for the westward.

THE WALDO PATENT.

As this patent is the foundation for all the land titles in Islesborough, a brief description of it is here given.

* Church's Narratives, by Rev. Henry M. Dexter, D. D., LL.D., edition of 1867, and Bangor Historical Magazine, vol. VI, page 252.

In 1620 King James I of England* granted about all of the continent of North America to forty noblemen, knights and gentlemen, who were styled "The Council of Plymouth, in Devon, England." This Council surrendered its charter in 1635, (having been outgeneraled by the Massachusetts settlers). Before surrendering it they made several grants of land within the State of Maine, which held good. One of these grants was known as the Museongus Patent, now known as the Waldo Patent, which had in it, by estimation, nearly one thousand square miles. It included the whole of Knox County except Fox Islands, and of Waldo County except some towns in the western part, Long Island, now Islesborough, which, being within three miles of the main land, was claimed and held as in the grant, and a part of Penobscot County. In the course of time the grant came into the hands of General Samuel Waldo, who died near Bangor, on the east side of Penobscot river, May 23, 1759, aged 63 years. From General Waldo the grant descended to his heirs.

In the year 1789, George Washington, President of the United States, appointed Henry Knox, Esq., Secretary for the Department of War, which office he filled for over five years. He then obtained the reluctant consent of Washington to retire. In consequence of his marriage with Lucy Flucker, she having her inheritance of a portion of the Waldo Patent, Brigadier Waldo's estate was divided in five portions; and, his son Ralph having previously deceased without issue, it was shared as follows: viz., Col. Samuel Waldo (2), by right of primogeniture, two shares; Francis Waldo, Mrs. Hannah Flucker, and Mrs. Lucy Winslow, one share each. Thomas Flucker, the husband of Hannah Waldo, having in 1765 purchased of her brother Samuel his two shares of said estate, and having since, in consequence of his having joined the British, been declared an outlaw, and his estate confiscated, Mrs. Knox, the only loyal member of his family, became seized in right of her mother of one-fifth part of the Waldo Patent ; and the two other fifths belonging to her father remained to be disposed of by an agent or administrator appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Suffolk, the late residence of said Flucker. Joseph Pierce, the agent first appointed, seems to have confined his doings to the property in Boston, or other parts of Massachusetts proper, and, having resigned his office, was succeeded by Gen. Knox, in accordance with a resolve of the General Court of June 28, 1784. His bond was given to Oliver Wendell, Judge of Probate for Suffolk county, for 20,000 pounds, with Benjamin Hitchborn and Henry Jackson, Esqs., as sureties ; at which time Flucker was styled an absentee, lately deceased. In October, 1790, Knox obtained license of the Supreme Judicial Court to sell all the real estate of Thomas Flucker, and, May 27, 1791, gave bonds faithfully to account for the same to the State treasurer. Having been duly sworn before Judge Iredell, of Philadelphia, and having caused advertisements, dated March 21, 1791, to be posted up in Boston, Charlestown, and Roxbury, as also at Pownalborough, Newcastle, Nobleborough, Waldoborough, Warren, Cushing, Megunticook, Thomaston, Camden, Meduncook, Ducktrap, Frankfort, Belfast, Penobscot, Union, and Hope, he made sale, at the Bunch of Grapes tavern, in State street, Boston, July 2, 1791, to Oliver Smith, of Boston, of the two-fifths of the Waldo Patent belonging to said Flucker's estate, estimated at sixty-five thousand or seventy thousand acres, with the exception of what had been sold prior to April 19, 1775, and subject to the conditions of the resolves of 1785 and 1788. This purchase Smith conveyed to Henry Jackson, of Boston, who, October 1, 1792, transferred it to Gen. Knox, still of Philadelphia, for the sum of $5,200. In the following year, 1793, Knox purchased of Samuel Waldo (3d) and others, the two remaining fifths; and thus, in his own right and that inherited by his wife, became sole proprietor of the Waldo estate, with the exception of what had been previously alienated.

Knox having now become the owner of the extensive domain, lost no time in taking possession, occupying, and improving the same. As the quitclaim deed from the heirs of Francis Waldo and Lucy Winslow could legally transfer only such estate as they were in actual possession of, and as large portions of it had been taken up and were in the actual possession of those who had settled upon it during and since the war of the Revolution, it was necessary to put the grantee in possession by actual entry on these lots, and by "livery and seizin made by sod and twig." This legal ceremony was gone through with by Ebenezer Vesey, attorney to the said heirs, and John S. Tyler, attorney to Gen. Knox, in the autumn of 1793, upon the lots of eighty-seven settlers in Thomaston, eighteen of Thomaston Marsh, sixty-one in Warren, seventy-five in Cushing, twelve in Camden, five in Canaan, seventy-two in Ducktrap, ten in Meduncook, one hundred and one in Walldoborough, one on Brigadier Island, eighteen in Islesborough, eight on the pond back of Ducktrap, and forty-seven in Frankfort.—[Eaton's History of Thomaston and Rockland, page 207.]

STATEMENT FROM THE KNOX PAPERS.

An estimate of land within the Waldo Patent belonging to the Winslow family, which they derive title to from a deed of division made by Brigadier Waldo's heirs, March 19th, 1768, and from a deed of Beleher Noyes, viz.:

First pr. divisional deed is assigned to I. Winslow, Esq., and Lucy his wife in her right, four islands. Contents: Long Island, No. 92, 5,883 acres; No. 80, 655 acres; No. 81, 77 acres; No. 42, 6,657 acres.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN HENRY KNOX AND LONG ISLAND
SETTLERS, 3D AUG., 1799.

Memorandum of an agreement made at the house of Major Philip Ulmer, in Ducktrap, this 3d day of August, 1799, between Henry Knox on the one part, and the following settlers on Long Island on the other.

1. That the following surveyors are hereby appointed to make a survey, so far as to ascertain the distance from the nearest part of the main to the centre of Long Island, and that the said surveyors shall ascertain the centre of said island: To wit, John Peters, of Bluehill Bay, to be notified by the inhabitants of Long Island; John Harkness, of Cambden, to be notified by Henry Knox; James Malcom, Esq., of Cushing; and if by any circumstances that one of the said persons shall not accept the appointment, the other two of said surveyors shall appoint a third.

The said surveyors shall be notified of this appointment as soon as possible, and be desired to meet together for this business on or before the tenth of September next ensuing, and they shall as soon after proceed to the execution of the trust reposed as they shall find it practicable.

2. The said surveyors and chainmen are to be sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties; and it is further agreed that if the centre of said island shall be determined to be less than three miles off the main, that Henry Knox shall pay the entire expenses of said survey; but if the centre of said island shall be further than three miles, the inhabitants of said island shall pay the expenses of the survey.

3. And it is further agreed that if the centre of said island shall be found within three miles of the main, that John Harkness shall immediately proceed to the running out of the lots referred to the commissioners, appointed by the Legislature of the Commonwealth.

Witness to all the signers:

LONG ISLAND DESCRIBED, ALSO AN ISLAND NEAR, OR SEVEN HUNDRED ACRES.

Long Island, in Penobscot Bay, is a superb island of about six thousand acres of excellent land. Said island is about twelve miles in length, possessing excellent harbours, and about two miles from the western shore of the bay. Excellent fisheries of cod, halibut and salmon are in its waters. It is all high land, that is favors (?) are on the main from, has upwards of sixty families thereon, all without title excepting agreements for about two thousand acres. This island is an incorporated township by the name of Islesborough.

The title perfect; Isaac Winslow, Esq., in the right of his wife, having had this as a divided portion in the year 1768, and was then and afterwards in the undisputed possession thereof. At the latter end of the war the settlers or usurpers went on the island. Before the war there were several tenants on lease, all of whom have expired. The heirs of Isaac Winslow and wife conveyed to the subscriber in the year 1793. References to a committee of the General Court for the price which should be given. A bond given by the settlers and the subscriber; but when the surveyors went upon the business of the surveyors, some of the settlers declined having their lands surveyed. This can only occasion an enhancement of price. The agreements which have been made were at two hundred and twenty-five cents per acre in the year 1797, with interest from the date. If the references shall not be carried into effect, it is probable that the release form of compromise sale of three dollars would leave the island without inhabitants, under state of nature. The subscriber has solid reasons to believe that he could obtain at the rate from ten to twelve dollars per acre. At present it abounds with excellent farms and many good houses, and some with no buildings thereon, may be averaged at an higher rate than twelve dollars. There are many vessels belonging to the inhabitants, used on the coast, and every flat of wood is so circumstance that it may command ready market at one dollar per cord.

There is an island in the neighborhood called Seven Hundred Acres, which also probably belongs to the subscriber, although some doubts have been entertained by the inhabitants. Mr. Winslow possessed it completely before the war, and the centre of it is, I have no doubt, within three miles of the main, which is the criterion of its belonging to the subscriber.

After having given this description the estimation is made that it will net the subscriber from fifteen hundred to eighteen hundred dollars, the payment of which will be secured by the possessions, buildings and farms of the inhabitants, and better security cannot well be imagined, as the property will amount to four times that sum.

This island may be conveyed for security of the following notes.

One note of $3,752.98 100

One ditto of 5,000

One ditto of 6,000

$14,752.98 100

GILKEY'S HARBOR AND CAMDEN MOUNTAINS.

GULL POINT, FROM ISLESBOROUGH INN.

If this security should be accepted by the note-holders in the above farms, payable in five or six years with interest annually, the joint bond of Knox and Jackson* will be given for the first sum, and the name of B. Lincoln† thereto added for the two others.

In this case it would be desired that the sum for three thousand eight hundred dollars should be suspended, and two notes taken, payable with interest in eighteen months, given by Knox and endorsed by H. Jackson, and with security if desired; but the money shall be punctually paid at the time stipulated.

THE FIRST SETTLERS.

Mighill Parker, Esq., of Islesborough, wrote Governor Williamson in 1821 that Benjamin Thomas, from Cape Elizabeth, was the first settler, in 1768, bringing his family here in 1769. But from the most thorough investigation, I am satisfied that Shubael Williams was the first settler. He came in 1764, and cleared land on the east side, at what is now known as Bounty Cove, near the center of the island. Here he built a log house. With him were his sons Samuel, Amos, Joseph and Benjamin. His lot extended from the east to the west bay, and contained about three hundred acres. In 1786 he conveyed his home to his son Benjamin (unmarried), from whom it descended to the other members of the family. These facts are well authenticated by the descendants of Shubael now living on the island, being handed down from father to son, and are fully substantiated by an old gentleman, now living, and over seventy years of age. Without doubt Samuel Pendleton came with Shubael and settled on the east side, on what is known as Little Island, in the month of September, 1764, and his descendants live there yet. When Shubael Williams came to Long Island, his son Amos was ten years old. Amos was the grandfather of Thomas and Emery Williams.

William Pendleton, from Stonington, Conn., came in September, 1760, with his sons, John, Job, Harry, Jonathan and Oliver. All settled at the extreme southern part of Islesborough, except Job, who settled on an island adjacent, which now bears his name. All this property is now owned by Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett. It includes the extreme end of Islesborough, formerly the Thomas Boardman lot, and contains a total of five hundred acres. On the main island Mr. Brackett has built a summer residence, the outlook from which is not surpassed on the coast of New England. The property of John and Oliver is now owned by the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, of Philadelphia. On Oliver's lot is situated the splendid hotel known as the "Islesborough Inn." This company has improved the land, and what was formerly Oliver's lot has been sold at great prices to wealthy people, who are now (1892) erecting costly cottages.

Thomas Pendleton, from Stonington, Conn., came in 1775, with his sons Thomas, Samuel, Gideon, Joshua, Nathaniel and Stephen. He settled on the east side, below what is now known as Hewes' Point. Most of this land is now owned by his great-great-grandchildren, who are wealthy and enterprising. Thomas Pendleton, senior, was a cousin to William Pendleton, senior. It is said that Hon. George H. Pendleton, late United States Minister to Berlin, was a grandson of Thomas Pendleton, senior.*

Elder Thomas Ames came from Marshfield in 1770, with his son Jabez. They settled on a beautiful point of land on the east side of what is now known as Gilkey's Harbor, to the west of Ames' Cove. Elder Ames was the first settled minister. When he moved off the island Mr.

The editor throws in a query here.

Ames conveyed his land to Joseph Woodard. Joseph Woodard conveyed to James Sherman, who lived here and raised a large family. At his death Sherman's heirs conveyed to John Pendleton Farrow, who sold to J. D. Winsor, of Philadelphia, President of the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, who now holds the estate of one hundred and twenty-six acres.

Captain John Gilkey came in 1772, probably from Cape Cod. He settled on the west side of Gilkey's Harbor, and it is from him that this harbor derived its name.

Valentine Sherman and his son Robert came about 1791, probably from Connecticut. Both settled at Gilkey's Harbor, near Elder Thomas Ames. Valentine sold his land to his son on Aug. 1, 1792.

Capt. Anthony Coombs senior came about 1782, from New Meadows, with his sons Anthony, Jesse, Robert and Ephraim. He settled on the lot next north of Shubael Williams, where the meeting house now stands. His descendants still own and live on part of the estate. His sons settled on the north-east side of the island, above Sabbath-Day Harbor, where they built a saw and grist mill.

Capt. Peter Coombs, senior, came in 1784 or 1785 from Brunswick. He settled at Sabbath-Day Harbor, on the lot now occupied by "The Islesborough" hotel and other buildings, summer cottages, steamboat wharves, stores, etc. He sold his land to Mighill Parker in 1791, Aug. 1, and returned to Brunswick. Mr. Parker sold to Joseph Ryder, whose grandson, Jason Roscoe Ryder, still lives on and owns part of the estate. Mr. Ryder, senior, had a grist mill on his land and a tide mill, where the early settlers carried their grist to be ground.

Hosea and Fields Coombs, brothers, came about 1782. Hosea settled northerly of Capt. Anthony Coombs, on the lot known as that of the late Capt. Solomon P. Coombs, a grandson of Hosea. On this lot are the cottages of Hon. Joseph W. Porter, Sanborn, Bragg, Garland, Burr, Spratt and Milliken. Fields Coombs settled at the head of Sabbath-Day Harbor. Philip Coombs, a grandson of Anthony Coombs, and now 84 years old, says that there is no relation between his family and the descendants of Hosea and Fields.*

Joseph and Peter Woodard came in 1784 from Hingham, Mass., and first settled on the north-easterly side of the island. Joseph afterwards bought Elder Ames' lot at Gilkey's Harbor, and also the lot now owned by John P. Farrow, which had been sold to Derby Academy, of Hingham, Mass., by Joseph Woodard. Joseph was drowned in Belfast Bay. Peter probably moved away.

Sylvester Cottrell came about 1786, and settled on or near Hewes' Point. He sold his lot July 1, 1790, to Samuel Jackson, of Boston. This deed was the first recorded in Hancock County Records. Mr. Cottrel is said to have died in Miramichi.

Elihu Hewes came about the same time, and settled on the Cottrell lot on Hewes' Point, which was named for him.

Joseph Boardman came in 1774, from Boston. He married here the same year, and settled on the extreme southerly point of the island. His descendants say he was one of the innumerable number who threw the tea overboard in Boston Harbor.

Benjamin Marshall was here early. The town records say, "Old Mr. Ben. Marshall came to town meeting July 5, 1793. He was probably the father of Thomas Marshall, who settled on the northerly end of the island."

Simon Dodge, senior, came about 1784, from Block Island, R. I., with sons Simon, Noah, Rathburn, Mark,

A First Settler.

Israel, Solomon, and Joshua. He settled on the east side, below Mr. Thomas Pendleton, on what is now known as the Bonnet. His sons settled on various parts of the island, some at the north-west side. Joshua lived and died on the home estate. Walter F. Dodge, son of Joshua, was a man of note in Islesborough, and was buried on the home lot.

William Burns came before 1794, from Bristol, Me. There are none of his name on the island at the present time.

Joseph Pendleton, son of Peleg, came about 1790 from Stonington. He settled on the southern part of the island, above Dark Harbor. The estate extended from the east bay to Gilkey Harbor on the west. It remained in the family more than ninety years. Then it was sold to the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, of Philadelphia. They have improved the land by building roads. It is at present occupied by J. Murray Howe and family, of Boston, Mass.

Samuel Warren came before 1790, probably from Bristol. His oldest son John was a Quaker preacher, and at one time visited England.

Charles Newell was here in 1789.

Samuel Veazie came from Harpswell or Brunswick, about 1790. He was son of Rev. Samuel Veazie of Harpswell, and also of Hull and Duxbury, Massachusetts, and who graduated from Harvard College 1757. Samuel, Jr., settled on the northerly part of the island, east side, where his descendants now live.

Ellison Lasselle first settled on Lasselle Island, and afterwards on the extreme northern end of the island. His lot included Turtle Head. In all over one hundred acres. This property went into the hands of a relation, the founder of Lasell Female Seminary, who at his death willed it to three nephews, William, Edward and Zenas Lamry, who sold the property to J. P. Farrow, who sold it to James Dodge. Dodge in turn sold it to Dr. A. S. Davis, of Chelsea, Mass., who built him a cottage on the head, and was the pioneer to build summer cottages in Islesborough.

Rev. Charles Turner Thomas was here in 1788, and married Mary Gilkey. He may have been a son of Benjamin Thomas, senior.

William Grinnell came before 1791, from Block Island, R. I. He was selectman that year. He settled on the west side, below Sprague's Cove. He sold out to Joshua Moody, and moved to Belfast, where he died Dec. 5, 1842. Moody's grandson, John Moody, who is eighty-seven years old, now lives on the same lot.

Josiah Farrow came about 1790 from Bristol. He was a Revolutionary soldier.

John Farrow came in 1785 from Bristol. He was a nephew of Josiah Farrow, and he purchased the land of Benjamin Thomas. He built the schooners Rebecca, Mayflower, Spezia, Rialto, and Mary Jane. His great-great-grandson, John O. Farrow, still lives on the estate.

Jonathan Parker came before 1795, from Groton, Mass. He settled on the northerly end, east side, next north of Samuel Veazie.

Godfrey Triim came about 1792, or before, with his sons Godfrey, James and Robert. He settled on the north end and east side.

Simon Parker was here 1791. He bought the lots of Benjamin Coombs and John Sprague.

Mighill Parker came about 1790. He bought out Capt. Peter Coombs at Sabbath-Day Harbor. The lot was afterwards owned by Joseph Ryder.

Prince Holbrook, from Brunswick, came here about 1790.

Joseph Jones here in 1791. He married Betsey Ames, daughter of Elder Thomas Ames. They had no children.

William Elwell came in 1789, from Burton's Island, St. George. He removed to Northport.

David Thomas came before 1786. He settled on the north end of Acre Island. The names of the children have an "Old Colony flavor."

Adam Turner was one of the early settlers.

John Sprague came before 1794. His lot was near Sprague's Cove, west side. Lydia Sprague, widow of Jonathan, brother of John, came about 1800, with her sons, Simon, Solomon and Rathburn, and settled on the west side near Sprague's Cove.

Elisha Nash, from Weymouth, Mass., came in 1791, and bought a lot August 1st.

Jeremiah Hatch, Jr., came here about 1780, from Marshfield, Massachusetts, settled on the south-west side. His descendants live on this lot.

Benjamin Thomas, Jr., came in 1790, from Marshfield, Massachusetts. He settled on the north end of Seven-Hundred-Acre Island. This property remained in the family one hundred years. Then sold to Islesborough Land and Improvement Company.

CHAPTER II.

GENERAL KNOX AND THE SETTLERS.

IN 1788 the inhabitants sent a petition to the General Court asking for examination of the claim of General Knox to the ownership of the island, and for incorporation as a town. For some reason action on the petition relating to the claim was deferred for several years. In the meantime many of the settlers took deeds from General Knox, while others, the most of whom lived above the Narrows, declined to do so. After further petitions the General Court, March 9, 1797, appointed a commission to "settle and declare their rights." I give a copy of reference and agreement:

Whereas the Legislature of this Commonwealth, by a resolve passed on the ninth day of March last, appointed Nathan Dane, John Sprague, and Enoch Titeomb, Esquires, commissioners, they, or the major part of them, to settle and declare the terms on which any settler on the lands held under the late Brigadier General Samuel Waldo (and not heretofore alienated) shall be quieted in the possession of one hundred acres of land, that may best include his improvements, and who hath not made any agreement in writing concerning the lands with Henry Knox, Esquire, representative of the heirs of the said Waldo, as by the same resolve may appear :

And whereas, since the war with Great Britain, to wit, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, William Burns was a settler on a lot of one hundred acres of land situated in Islesborough, the bounds whereof shall be ascertained and settled by the said commissioners in their report hereon—the same lot being part of the land held under the said Waldo and said William Burns, a claimant now in possession thereof :

Now, in pursuance of the said resolve and appointment, we the said Henry Knox, representative as aforesaid, and the said William Burns, do refer and submit it to the said commissioners, they or the major part of them, to settle and declare the terms aforesaid on which the said William Burns, his heirs and assigns, shall be quieted in the possession of the said lot, holding ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators and assigns respectively, bound by their report in the premises, when made into the Secretary's office of said Commonwealth, as directed by the said resolve.

In witness whereof we hereto set our hands this twenty-fourth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-seven.

HENRY KNOX,

By DAVID FALES, his Attorney.

Signed in presence of

WILLIAM BURNS.

FIELDS COOMBS,
JOHN HARKNESS.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

This twenty-fourth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand and eight hundred.

On the foregoing reference between Henry Knox, Esquire, and William Burns, for quieting the said William Burns agreeably to the before-mentioned resolve, in the possession of said lot of land, bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake and stones standing on Penobscot west bay, thence running south thirteen degrees east adjoining on Samuel Warren's land two hundred and thirty-two rods to a spruce tree for a corner; thence south fifty-four degrees west forty-six rods to a stake and stones; thence north fifteen degrees west adjoining on Amos Williams' land two hundred and thirty-two rods to a stake and stones at shore; thence easterly as said Penobscot runs forty-nine and a half rods at right angles to the first mentioned bounds, containing sixty-seven and a half acres of land, as by the plan and description signed by John Harkness, surveyor, hereto annexed, will appear, reference thereto being had.

We the commissioners before named, having met and heard the parties, do settle, declare and report that the said William Burns be quieted in the possession of the above bounded premises, to have and to hold the same to him the said William Burns, his heirs and assigns forever, to his and their use forever, on the terms following, namely: the said William Burns, his heirs, executors or administrators, shall, on or before the first day of October, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and one, pay to the said Knox, his heirs, executors or administrators, the sum of eighty-one dollars with interest from the first day of June, one thousand eight hundred. And on the payment of the same, the said Knox or his heirs shall make, or cause to be made to the said William Burns, his heirs or assigns, a deed of the above described premises, whereby he and they may hold the same in fee simple forever.

Given under our hands and seals,

NATHAN DANE. [Seal.]

CHAPTER III.

THE INCORPORATION OF THE TOWN.

IN 1788 the subjoined petition was sent to the General Court, asking for incorporation as a town, by the name of Winchester:

To the Honorable the Senate and the Honorable the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in General Court assembled:

Humbly shews the committee appointed by the inhabitants of Long Island Plantation, in the county of Lincoln, that there has been several surveys of the said island, from the report of which we have always understood that no part of the centre of said island lay within three miles of the main, except from the report of Capt. Stone, who made the last survey, who says that the said island was within three miles of the main; but your petitioners humbly beg leave to observe that they conceive Capt. Stone may be mistaken, as they have understood that in his calculations he governed himself by Grant's survey and plan, which survey by said Grant is deemed very erroneous. It appears by the resolve of the Honorable General Court, confirming the grant of thirty miles to the heirs of Brigadier General Waldo, that all islands whose centre is within three miles of the main shall be considered and included within this grant. Your petitioners conceive that the true meaning of the word centre is by a line running through the centre of said island, and not confined to any point or neck of land jutting out of the body of said island.

LILY POND, HEAD OF SPRAGUE'S COVE.

Since the survey and report made by Capt. Stone, your petitioners have had an accurate survey of the distance of said island from the main, by an able surveyor, who assures your petitioners that no part of said island is within three miles of the main, and chainmen were duly sworn to faithfully and truly execute the duty of their several stations. Your petitioners therefore humbly entreat the Honorable General Court that some disinterested principal inhabitant in the vicinity may be empowered as well in behalf of the inhabitants as of the Commonwealth, to employ and inspect such persons as he may think capable of taking an accurate survey of the true distance of said island from the main, and make report thereof to the Honorable the General Court for their determination, and your petitioners will defray the expense attending such survey.

Your petitioners also entreat the Honorable General Court that all tax bills forwarded to be assessed on said plantation and its inhabitants may be stayed, and the assessing and collecting the same may be suspended until the lands are meted out and confirmed to the settlers, and a legal valuation can be presented. And as the different plantations in this part of the county of Lincoln are to be incorporated, your petitioners pray that Long Island Plantation, with the islands contiguous, may be incorporated into a town by the name of Winchester, that the inhabitants may be in the enjoyment of those privileges which are annexed to towns corporate, there being more than sixty families settled and residing therein, and as in duty bound will ever pray.

SHUBAEL WILLIAMS,
JOHN GILKEY, } Committee.

Long Island, Oct. 22, 1788.

January 28, 1789, the act was passed, but the name was changed.

An act for incorporating Long Island Plantation, with islands adjacent, in the county of Lincoln, into a town by the name of Islesborough.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., that the tracts of land described as follows, viz.: Long Island, Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, Job's Island and Lime Island, situated in Penobscot bay, in the county of Lincoln, with the inhabitants thereon, be and they are incorporated into a town by the name of Islesborough.

FIRST TOWN MEETING IN ISLESBOROUGH, 1789.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,

To Shubael Williams, one of the principal inhabitants of Long Island Plantation, in said county, yeoman:

Whereas by an act of greeting the General Court passed the twelfth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine, it is provided that the land described as follows, viz., Long Island, Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, Job's Island, and the Lime Islands, situated in Penobscot bay, in the county of Lincoln, with the inhabitants, be and they are hereby incorporated into a town by the name of Islesborough; and whereas by the same act the subscriber, one of the Justices of the Peace for the said county, is directed to issue his warrant to one of the principal inhabitants of the said plantation, to call a meeting of the inhabitants thereof in the name of the Commonwealth, directed to notify the meeting of the inhabitants next at nine of the clock in the forenoon, at the dwelling house of you, the said Shubael Williams, for the following purpose, viz.: To choose all such officers as towns are by law requested to choose at their annual meeting, in the month of March or April annually, and to act on all such other business as may be necessary to be done.

Given under my hand and seal at Penobscot, this seventeenth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine.

A charge was brought against Josiah Farrow, by the town treasurer, in 1829. A committee was appointed by the town. The following is a report of the committee:

That we have carefully and impartially examined and compared the clerk's, treasurer's, and said Farrow's accounts with the town, commencing with the year 1819, the year that said Farrow was first chosen one of the selectmen, and proceeding through said books to March 20, 1829, and to the satisfaction of your committee, have found the accounts of said Farrow substantially correct; and in every instance where an order had been drawn in favor of said Farrow, he has proved to the satisfaction of your committee that he has observed a scrupulous exactness, not varying one cent in ten years, which we should have thought almost impossible for him to have shown, considering the imperfect manner in which the clerk and treasurer's books have been kept. Accounts that had been credited and settled once a year and vouchers mislaid, thrown by, or destroyed as useless. It further appeared to your committee that in all contracts and expenditures of the public money, that he has proceeded openly, the strictest principles of economy and honesty, and in the most satisfactory manner exonerated himself from the false impression cast upon him by the town treasurer.

JOSEPH PENDLETON,
ELISHA EAMES,
THOMAS BOARDMAN,)

1856. Nelson Gilkey, Thomas H. Parker and Silas Bunker, selectmen.

Voted to have the old meeting-house converted into a town-house.

1857. Nelson Gilkey, Silas Bunker and Benjamin Ryder, selectmen.

In 1855 and 1856 there was a political society known as Know-Nothings, or Native Americans. They held private meetings in the school-houses. They created considerable excitement, and had a strong opposition, with a kind of hostile resistance. When the decisive vote was declared, the Know-Nothings having the most votes, elected their town officers.

1858. Silas Bunker, Benjamin Ryder and Elisha K. Pendleton, selectmen.

1859. Silas Bunker, Calvin Eames and Lorenzo Pendleton, selectmen.

1860. Silas Bunker, Benjamin Ryder and Lorenzo Pendleton, selectmen.

1861. Nelson Gilkey, Lorenzo Pendleton and William P. Boardman, selectmen.

1862. Silas Bunker, Benjamin Ryder and Daniel Hatch, selectmen.

At a meeting of the inhabitants in 1863, voted to raise three hundred and twenty-five dollars, to be paid to each man that would volunteer to fill the town quota of twenty men, for the call of the President of the United States, October 17, 1863.

Voted Finley B. Keller a recruiting officer of the town, and the recruiting officer shall not pay over three hundred and twenty-five dollars out of the town, and to get them as cheap as possible.

Voted that the town treasurer be authorized to hire money to pay volunteers as fast as needed.

Voted that if the town fail to get their quota of volunteers, and should a draft be made, that the town pay three hundred and twenty-five dollars to each man that is drafted and accepted and mustered into the service of the United States.

1863. James B. Williams, Benjamin Ryder and William Farrow, selectmen.

1864. James B. Williams, Benjamin Ryder and William Farrow, selectmen.

1865. James B. Williams, Henry B. Coombs and William Farrow, selectmen.

1866. James B. Williams, Henry B. Coombs and William Farrow, selectmen.

1867. James B. Williams, Thomas H. Parker and William Farrow, selectmen.

1868. James B. Williams, Thomas H. Parker and William Farrow, selectmen.

1869. James B. Williams, Charles Nash and Henry B. Coombs, selectmen.

1870. James B. Williams, Charles Nash and Finley B. Keller, selectmen.

1871. Nelson Gilkey, Calvin W. Sherman and Silas Bunker, selectmen.

1872. Nelson Gilkey, Calvin W. Sherman and Silas Bunker, selectmen.

1873. Charles Nash, Finley B. Keller and Dodge Pendleton, selectmen.

Voted that the tax bills committed to William P. Sprague, Ephraim Coombs, James B. Williams and E. K. Pendleton, be put in the hands of the selectmen, and for them to appoint some person to collect the amount due on them.

Voted to recall and take out of the Supreme Judicial Court in this county, in favor of the inhabitants of Islesborough, and against William P. Sprague, the suit now pending.

1874. Charles Nash, Finley B. Keller and Dodge Pendleton, selectmen.

Voted to accept the proposals of William P. Sprague in relation to tax bills committed to him for collection, for the years 1865 and 1866, as follows:

If the town will relinquish their claims against William P. Sprague and his bondsmen for uncollected taxes for the years 1865 and 1866, he will agree to deliver the bills for said years to the selectmen, without any claims for his commissions, for money he has collected, which commissions would amount to two hundred and one dollars. Voted to accept the above offer.

Voted to choose a committee of three. Chose Mark Pendleton, Benjamin Ryder and Henry B. Coombs to take William P. Sprague's tax bills, and examine them and report to the town.

1875. Charles Nash, Finley B. Keller and James H. Ryder, selectmen.

Voted this year to raise seven hundred dollars to pay L. A. Knowlton for interest.

Voted that the selectmen appoint a man to collect the balance due on the tax bills of Ephraim Coombs, E. K. Pendleton, James B. Williams and William P. Sprague.

1876. Charles Nash, Calvin W. Sherman and James H. Ryder, selectmen.

Ninth article in the warrant: To see if the town will vote to exempt from tax money furnished by parties in town, to pay in part or the whole of what the town owes L. A. Knowlton, providing they will let money to the town for six per cent. annual interest.

Voted to adopt article ninth in the warrant, as it reads, providing it can be done legally.

1877. Charles Nash, Calvin W. Sherman and James H. Ryder, selectmen.

Voted to pay the taxes in to the treasurer, and after six months expire, the bills to be put into the hands of the high sheriff of the county for collection.

At a town meeting December 17, 1877, voted to pass the article to rescind the vote in relation to putting the tax bills into the high sheriff's hands for collection.

1878. Charles Nash, Daniel A. Hatch and James H. Ryder, selectmen.

1879. Charles Nash, Daniel A. Hatch and George M. Dix, selectmen.

1880. Nelson Gilkey, Daniel A. Hatch and Watson H. Coombs, selectmen.

1881. Nelson Gilkey, Daniel A. Hatch and Watson H. Coombs, selectmen.

1882. Nelson Gilkey, George M. Dix and James H. Ryder, selectmen.

1883. Nelson Gilkey, Daniel A. Hatch and Samuel T. Keller, selectmen.

1884. George M. Dix, James B. Williams and Samuel T. Keller, selectmen.

1885. George M. Dix, James B. Williams and E. A. Eames, selectmen.

1886. Amariah Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Walter E. Haynes, selectmen.

Voted a discount of ten per cent. on those who pay their taxes on or before the first day of November.

1887. Amariah Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Walter E. Haynes, selectmen.

1888. Amariah Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Austin Trim, selectmen.

1889. Amariah Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Austin Trim, selectmen.

1890. Austin Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Winfield S. Pendleton, selectmen.

1891. Austin Trim, Samuel T. Keller and Winfield S. Pendleton, selectmen.

1892. Austin Trim, Winfield S. Pendleton and Benjamin F. Heal, selectmen.

Voted to raise three thousand dollars to build town hall and high school.

THE FINANCES OF THE TOWN OF ISLESBOROUGH.

The town, as shown by the reports of the selectmen, has never been in an embarrassing condition, the reports showing that their assets were more than their liabilities. The town frequently voted to pay the taxes in to the treasurer, and in many cases where the tax payers failed to do so, the treasurer or the constable became the collector. There was a residue remaining uncollected year after year; moneyed men out of town holding the orders and receiving great usury. In the year 1875 the town paid to one man seven hundred dollars for interest. One of the principal causes was unsettled taxes, and the town having a lawsuit about that time, was a sufferer to quite an amount.

In early Islesborough days the taxes were promptly collected, the town loaning money to the inhabitants, having a surplus in the treasury, the collector often paying into the treasurer the whole amount, on or before the annual March meeting. History repeats itself, and the halcyon days of our fathers have come back. In the years of 1888 and 1889 the taxes were all paid in to the treasurer, also in 1890 and 1891, to Amariah Trim and John P. Bragg, collectors. In 1891 the town was out of debt, with a small surplus in the treasury.

CHAPTER IV.

SCHOOLS AND SCHOOL-HOUSES.

ABOUT the year 1823 the Legislature made a law requiring the taxing of real estate for the building of school-houses, and repairing the same, in the districts where they are situated, and the town then defined the districts by limits, not by families or houses. Among the first transactions of the town after the organization was to divide the town into school districts.

At the commencement of the present century the first settlers were limited in books, and it is surprising that so few grew up without learning to read or write. All the books that they had were the Bible, Watts' hymn book and the Almanac, which were resorted to on all occasions. Many who never had but a few months' schooling became good readers and writers, and spelled correctly in after life. The first schools were kept in rooms in some house in the district, the teacher boarding around from house to house in the district where he taught school. This practice was kept up for more than fifty years. Each family would contribute and haul their proportion of the fuel, which was used in an open fire-place that burned half a cord a day. The ferule and birch were often made use of, and at times with great severity, whenever the teacher thought necessary, and were remembered by the scholars as long as they lived. The first school books were the American Preceptor, English Reader, Webster's Spelling Book, Walsh's Arithmetic, Greenleaf's Grammar and Webster's Dictionary.

A transient visit was occasionally made by some traveling preacher, who would be hired to teach the winter school, among whom were Lemuel Rich, Elder Macomber, and Elder Ephraim Emery. The summer school was often kept by some of the inhabitants' daughters. Among the first teachers were Masters Powers, Abbott, Hall, Witham, Williams, Luce, Trueworthy, Andrew and George Pendleton and Josiah Eames; Mrs. Christina Thompson, Lydia Phillips, Eliza Farrow, Betsey and Sally Eames and Henry Rose; and at that time there was a plan made of the town, dividing it into seven school districts. I have made diligent search, but have not been able to find the plan. After a number of years they added a new district known as the Bluff, or No. 8. These school-houses remain on or near the same places where they were first located more than sixty years ago. That of district No. 1, situated on Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, remains the same as originally built. It has been kept in repair, and while not ornamental it is comfortable.

In district No. 2, a new school-house was built a few years ago, and is called by the inhabitants Dark Harbor school-house.

In district No. 3 the original school-house is to be taken down this year and a new one built. The school is known as the Creek school.

In district No. 4 a new school-house was built a few years ago. It is of good size with modern seats, is painted white, and has green blinds. It is built on or near the same place where the old school-house stood. This district is the largest in Islesborough, and has the most scholars. The school-house is known as the East Side school-house.

In district No. 5 the school-house was built in 1864, twenty eight years ago, and this year, 1892, has had extensive repairs. It is second in size in regard to scholars. The school-house is known as the Ryder school-house.

District No. 6, called the Sprague or West district, is a small one, having but a few scholars. The original school-house is still standing, but is kept in good repair.

District No. 7, known as the Parker district, has one of the best school-houses in town, having been recently repaired. A high school is being taught in it the present year. At present all the children in town have good schools and competent teachers, and many are sent to seminaries, high schools and commercial colleges, with but little thought on their part of the hardships those who preceded them sustained in order to acquire an education. It remains to be seen whether with their education they can fulfil their duties of life and make the record of their fathers.

I wish each school could be supplied with a copy of the town history, not as a special study, but for reference. How many good compositions could be written from it; and the rising generation would better know what it cost the first settlers to establish the town.

NEW TOWN-HOUSE.

In 1892 the town made a handsome appropriation for building a new town-house, with accommodations for the high school. It is built on the commanding eminence between Crow Cove and Bounty Cove, being the site of the first meeting-house and town-house. A plan of the building is herein given.

PHYSICIANS.

One of the worst troubles the first settlers had to contend with was the want of a physician. There was no regular doctor here until 1830. When sickness was in any of the families they would man a boat and cross the bay, the people of the lower end going to Lincolnville, there get a team, and one of the party go to Camden after Dr. Estabrook, he being very popular with the first settlers, and was employed by them as long as he would come. He probably was their principal physician for more than thirty years. The people of the upper end of the town generally sent to Castine after Dr. Oliver Mann. He has crossed the bay a good many times for the Islesborough families, never refusing to come, no matter how bad the weather. The town was indebted to the late Dr. Joseph L. Stevens, of Castine, who was called there often for a large number of years. The old people speak of him with great respect. Mrs. Lydia Pendleton was called when there was no doctor (while the boat was gone to Camden). She had acquired some practical knowledge, and became very useful; was known by the inhabitants as Aunt Lydia Jonathan.

The earliest physician of whom we have knowledge, that practiced in Islesborough, was Dr. John Payne. He was here from 1830 to 1840.

The next physician was Dr. Fairfield, who married Thankful Phillips. She was a daughter of Elder Thomas Ames. He came about 1840, practicing for several years. He was a surgeon in the war of 1812; served on board the private armed brigantine called the "Scourge."

Dr. S. D. Buzzell came here about 1852, practicing here a number of years. He was well advanced in years. He moved away. The date of his death and his age are unknown.

Dr. John DeLaski came here from Fox Island about 1857. He was a man of good education, and a skillful physician. He stayed only two or three years, then moved back to Fox Island.

Dr. Moses Dakin came here, about 1860, from Hope. He was well advanced in years when he commenced practicing here. He was here a number of years, and was respected, but somewhat eccentric.

Dr. Nathaniel Davis was here for a short time, and though a regular practitioner, was not popular.

Dr. L. W. Hammons moved here in 1885, meeting with fair success. Having a large family, he thought he could do better, and moved to Belfast in 1891.

CHURCHES AND MEETING-HOUSES.

Prior to 1790 the religious privileges of the town were few. Occasionally a minister came on to the island and preached a few Sabbaths. That year Rev. Isaac Case, Baptist pastor at Thomaston, came here and preached, and in 1791 he organized the first Baptist church. The inhabitants were for many years Baptists of the old school.

In 1794 the town voted £20 a year to Thomas Ames as minister. In 1800 the town employed the Rev. Charles Thomas to preach. Mr. Thomas married Rachel Gilkey, Jan. 30, 1788, and lived on the island many years. Rev. Charles G. Porter in his memorial address at Winthrop, 1874, says that Mr. Case came here and settled, but I doubt if he brought his family here. In 1804 Mr. Case baptised forty-three persons, who were admitted to the church. The same year Thomas Ames was ordained pastor of the church, continuing until 1809, when he removed to Hope.

In 1809 Rev. Lemuel Rich was ordained pastor of the church. He was born at East Machias, Jan. 10, 1780. He married, while here, Grace, daughter of John Gilkey. Published Feb. 16, 1810. He was dismissed in 1819, and removed to Union or Hope, where he died in 1864.

About 1832 Rev. Ephraim W. Emery came. He married here Temperance, widow of Stephen Pruden. Published March 10, 1832. She was daughter of Benjamin Williams. He continued here until after 1834.

Rev. William J. Durgin was ordained pastor of the church in March, 1843. He died here Dec. 19, 1868.

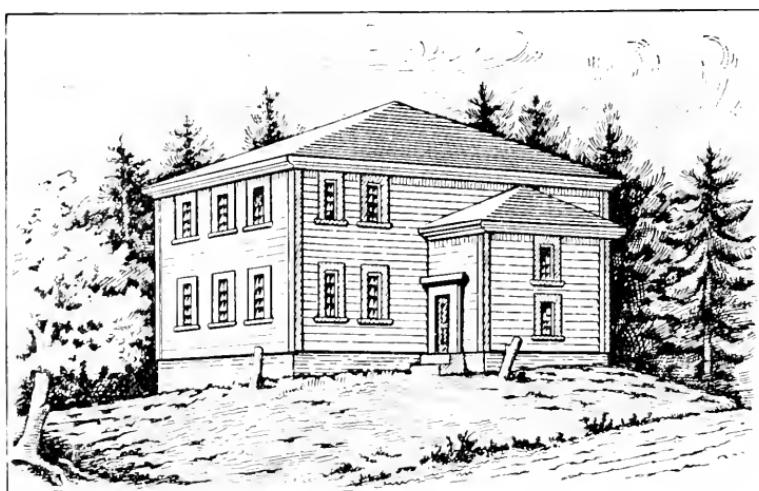

In 1845 the church membership was one hundred and twenty-eight. Since this time many other Baptist ministers have preached here.

Many of the inhabitants came to meeting in their boats. They brought their dinners with them, and would remain till the afternoon service. Some came on horseback, their wives riding on behind, the children walking with their shoes in their hands, and when they got to church putting them on. The men were dressed with long-tailed coats made of blue broadcloth, with bright brass buttons, with a ruffled shirt and a buff vest, a red handkerchief, part of which would hang out of their coat pocket. The ladies were dressed with short waists and short skirts; their feet covered with shoes, with a black silk bow or a buckle on top; a ruffle round the neck, and a head dress called a calash.

The first meeting-house was built wholly or in part by the town. It was occupied by the Baptists, and by the town for town meetings. It was begun soon after 1794, and completed in 1804. The building was thirty-seven by forty, two stories high, and but a single door. It was neatly finished inside and out. There were sixteen large windows. The porch was about sixteen feet square on the ground and sixteen feet high, divided into two rooms, and a stairway to go up into the galleries. The house was twenty feet posts, with a hip roof. It was placed nearly north and south, and the pulpit was in the north end, with winding stairs leading up to it. In front of the pulpit on the ground floor, was what was called the deacon's seat. The galleries ran around three sides of the house. Across the south side were the singing seats opposite the altar. The galleries were nine feet wide, with four rows of seats rising one above the other. The under part was plastered. It was finished with heavy mouldings. The galleries were supported with heavy columns and finished with capitals. The work was done in a thorough and workmanlike manner. In 1794 the town raised fifty pounds to build the house, but it was not completed till 1804, when they had their first meeting. Mr. Mark Dodge did the stone work, and laid the underpinning. Simon, his brother, worked with him. Capt. Stephen Pendleton and Noah Dodge loaned money to the town for the house. There was no steeple or chimney, and no means of warming the house were provided.

Tithing-men were chosen by the town, whose special duty was to enforce regulations for observing the Sabbath.

FRAGMENTARY HISTORY AND INCIDENTS.

In the war of 1812, when the English ships were in Castine, there was a neutrality established between the settlers on the island, on account of its situation. The inhabitants found a ready market for their produce. Everything that they had to sell brought good prices, and to a certain extent they reaped a harvest. They had but little land under cultivation, and their supply was limited. Their money being scarce, they would get together all that was possible to obtain, and carry it to Castine, and sell to the English ships. The neighboring towns hearing of this, would bring their produce over to the island, the island people carrying it to Castine as their own production; the English thinking Islesborough the garden of Eden. Their action on this occasion was not patriotic, but considering the hard times they had to get along, they were excusable in a manner; and in those days, as well as the present, they sacrificed principle for money. The neutrality was not carried out to the letter, in the case of Mr. Henry Boardman. He had a yoke of oxen, which the English wished to purchase for beef. On his refusing to sell the oxen they told him they would take them without paying for them. Discretion being better than valor the oxen were sold.

Upwards of seventy families were here in 1812 and 1813. Great hardships were endured in consequence of the high cost of the necessaries of life. Some, without doubt, would have entered the military or naval service, but on account of their insular situation they were not permitted to join either side. The inhabitants were not hostile to the United States government. The harsh and frigid realities of war were sensibly felt. Commerce was at an end, and hardly a coaster dared venture out of the harbor. The price of provisions was fabulous: flour twenty dollars per barrel; molasses one dollar and a half per gallon; tea from two to three dollars per pound; coffee forty cents per pound."

Scarcely half a century has passed since the inhabitants would carefully rake up the ashes over the coals in their fire places, when retiring for the night, as they had no means of lighting their fires excepting by a flint and steel, which was kept in a tinder box. This process of getting fire was obtained with considerable trouble, so if their fire went out they would often go to their nearest neighbor and get a fire-brand or some live coals (in a box with a handle, which was made for that purpose). The first matches were of lucifer or sulphur, ignited by drawing through sand paper. They were introduced here about 1839. Afterwards a match called locofoco became universal, and at the present time when a person goes very early to a neighbor's house, he will often be greeted with "Did you come after fire?"

The first inhabitants, after clearing a part of their land and building their log cabin, next provided themselves with a boat, which was indispensable to them. It was used for fishing, going to mill, to cross to the main land, to sell their produce and get their stores, and was used on Sunday to go to meeting; not to attend divine worship or go to church, but simply to go to meeting. Some of the more wealthy, about the year 1815, purchased horses, and the first six that were in Islesborough were owned by Rathburn Dodge, Jonathan Parker, Mighill Parker, William Pendleton, John Pendleton and Joseph Boardman. They would ride on horseback, their wives sitting behind them on a pillion, when going to meeting or visiting some of the neighbors. The first carriage was owned by Rathburn Dodge, and was called a "chaise."

When the first settlers came here the island was mostly covered with spruce, with a scattering of beech, birch and maple. All that had ever been here to stop were the Tarratine Indians, who would visit the island in the summer. The waters abounded in fish and the shores in clams. The wild ducks were plenty in the coves, and on the shore hatched their young. The wild fox dug his hole unscared. The mink was plenty on the rocky shores, with none to molest but the Indian, who paddled his birch canoe along the shores a few weeks in summer. Tradition informs us that the salmon were so plenty that the first town poor protested against being served with salmon more than twice a week.

The island was taken up mostly in lots of one hundred acres. After felling the trees not more than one-third of the land was fit to cultivate, the residue being ledgy and swampy. The land that they could cultivate produced bountifully. One of their principal crops was potatoes, which they would ship to Boston, where they would get nine pence ($12\frac{1}{2}$ cents) per bushel. The average price paid for their land to the proprietors was about one hundred and twenty-five dollars for each farm. They built their houses one story, with three rooms, bedroom and buttery on the ground floor. They had one chimney in the centre of the house, which would take ten thousand bricks to build. The fire-place in the kitchen would burn cord wood six feet long. The kitchen was ornamented with a pole hung from the ceiling used for drying pumpkins, herbs, clothes, etc., with a gun hung up on the partition. They used sand on the floors and cedar boughs for a broom.

The people were united, and would often club together and build a coaster, which their sons would often take charge of at the age of twenty years. Their money was principally Spanish milled dollars. Their hospitality was unlimited, and the stranger found a welcome at their table. Honesty and plain dealing were characteristic of them. The children were brought up to respect the aged, always using the title "sir" to the men, and would take off their hats or make a courtesy. Their carriages were supported by thorough-braces for springs, and were so well made that they would last for half a century. The first sleigh had but one thill, with tugs hitched to a whiffle-tree. Now the supposed millionaire summer guest, with his span of horses and his barouche, rides the streets, while those who are native here, and "to the manor born," look on with an amused surprise which he hardly appreciates.

Mr. Mark Dodge owned an island in east Penobscot bay by the name of Beach Island, which he deeded to his son Joseph. He got Esquire Nash to make out the conveyance. When he signed the deed he wrote his name in capital letters. "Why did you sign your name all in capitals, Mr. Dodge?" asked the justice. "Did you not know that Mark Dodge was a capital man, sir?"

Jack Farrow was a dog that was a friend to everybody, and every one was friendly to Jack. He would go to church early Sunday morning with the man who had charge of the house, and lay by the stove through the service, and after meeting come home. One Sunday another dog came into church, and Jack pitched in for a fight. The deacon got up to put the dogs out, when an old lady rose and said, "Don't you put Jack Farrow out. He is all the one of the family that goes to meeting."

Jack Richardson was a Frenchman. He lived on an island known as Frenchman's Island. He was a very short and thick-set man. He would get a little too much of strong drink, though in this respect he was only following the example of many of the settlers. There was a minister by the name of Pullen, who went to visit Jack, and after showing him the evil of his ways he (Jack) promised to do better. So the minister left him on probation, and would return and baptize him. When he came back to the island, and was ready to perform the services, Jack said, "Brother Pullen, let us take a drop of grog before we go into the water." "Oh, no, brother Richardson." "You refuse to drink with Jack? Go to hell, then." There lived on the same island a man and his wife named Nichols. There was born to them a boy and a girl. This being Jack's paradise, he insisted and had them named Adam and Eve.

Joshua Dodge was a salmon fisherman. He came from his nets one day and had twelve salmon in his boat. John Bowden, who was a town pauper, was on the shore when Mr. Dodge landed. "Them are nice fish, Mr. Dodge." "Johnny, I will give you one," said Mr. Dodge. "Oh, no! I shall dirty my clothes if I take one home."

The hardships of some of the first settlers, in the Revolutionary war, were severe. The case of Esq. John Gilkey was peculiarly hard. He settled on the point where the light-house now stands, and from him the harbor derives its name. He had five small children, and but one cow. He was at work in the field, when a privateer boat came on shore and by force made him go with them in the boat, leaving everything just as it was. He was gone nearly three years from home, all of this time never hearing from his family, his wife having a hard time with her small children. One day a boat came, full of men, and took her cow and butchered it, she begging them with tears running down her cheeks; saying that it was all she had, and if they took her cow her children would starve. He was at last released, and landed on White Head, an island on the coast of Maine in the Mussel Ridge channel, where he started on foot and walked home, hiding in the daytime and walking nights. At Lincolnville he found an Indian canoe, in which he crossed the bay, and at last got home. He received a pension from the United States government towards the last of his life.

One of our young men in charge of a coasting vessel, coming home from a trip, anchored in Sabbath-Day harbor on a foggy night, paid out forty fathoms of chain, furled the sails, manned the boat and permitted the crew to go home. The captain went to see his sweetheart. There was very little wind in the night, but in the morning the schooner was ashore on the beach at the head of the harbor. With some surprise the captain went to the schooner. Sure enough there were forty fathoms of chain in the hawse, but the anchor was on the bobstay.

There is a story of one of the old persons, who did not agree with his nearest neighbor; but when there was any stone work to do—laying cellar wall or building stone wall—they always worked together. One of them died suddenly, and the other began to lay up wall alone. He was laying up a cellar wall, when a passer-by said to him, "Don't you wish that uncle (mentioning his name) was here to help you complete the wall?" "Well, yes, if he would go straight back to Tophet as quick as the wall was laid up."

The use of ardent spirits was a source of more or less dissatisfaction among the people in early days. On one occasion a member of the church, who was in the habit of making too free with intoxicating liquor, was dealt with by the church. The charge was proved against him, and he was to be suspended. The presiding minister said, "Brother, what have you got to say why you should not be expelled?" "Well, I confess that I have done wrong, but the last time that I drank any liquor, you and I drank it together when we were in Providence."

ISLESBOROUGH SKETCH.

SHORE RAVINE, NORTH ISLESBOROUGH.

DESCRIPTIVE.

The points of interest on the island of Islesborough are numerous and varied. A great diversity of scenery greets the stranger when driving from Turtle Head to the southern end of the island. The scenery along the east and west bays is especially striking. Jutting promontories and headlands, stern ledges and boulders, beautiful beaches covered with sand and pebbles, and numerous coves, are observable on either side and along the entire length of the island. The east and west bays are dotted with sails of every description; schooners, yachts and steamboats lend enchantment to the view. The roads are fringed on either side with evergreens, and the houses are neat and modest. The landscape is one of fields and pastures. Away in the west are seen the mountains of Camden and Northport, and in the east Cape Rosier, Blue Hill, and Isle au Haut. No scenery, to my mind, is superior to that of the grand Penobscot bay from some of the points overlooking its eastern and western branches.

Being surrounded by water, the thermometer does not rise so high nor fall so low by several degrees as on the main shore. There is a difference, in very cold weather, between the east and the west side, of two and three degrees; the north-west winds sweeping the westerly shore, and driving the snow in heaps, while the east side remains comparatively level. The southerly and easterly winds are mild in comparison with the northerly and westerly winds in the winter. Violent north-west winds were frequent in the winter months, lasting two or three days, with a change of temperature. The thermometer would often go below zero. For the last ten or twelve years the north-west winds have not blown with the same severity that they did formerly, and there has been a noticeable change in the climate in this respect.

In 1780 the winter was particularly severe. Travelers went on foot across the ice. The celebrated dark day occurred May 19.

1786-'87. Intense cold. Ice was formed in the bay so thick that when the water rose, rocks of large size were lifted from their beds.

1793. October 31, snow fell six or eight inches.

1798. Snow fell Nov. 16 and remained until April. The spring was early.

1810. January 19, cold Friday; violent storm; change of temperature, forty-six degrees in fifteen hours.

1816. For the first time during a period of thirty-five years the bay was frozen over. The coldest summer on record in Europe and America. June 11, ice froze one-fourth of an inch thick. July 5, ice froze the thickness of window glass. Corn was frozen in August so that it was cut for fodder. There was frost and ice every month in the year, and the farmer was discouraged. Some built brush fires around their corn-fields, and succeeded in raising corn for seed. The inhabitants generally feared a famine, so great was the scarcity of food. They lived principally on fish, as there were no vegetables grown excepting potatoes, in sheltered localities.

1818. The bay frozen, and the people going to Castine and Belfast on the ice until March 23.

1821. Snow-storm October 19, snowing the whole day.

1823. June 9, heavy frost. Ice formed the thickness of window glass. Nothing in the history equal to the drought of that year, before or since. Rivers dried up, vegetation withered; cattle were driven for miles to water, and September 29 there was a considerable fall of snow.

1826. The thermometer in this locality twenty-four degrees below zero.

1828. The winter was the mildest ever known.
1829. Roads obstructed by heavy drifts. May 25, the thermometer in this vicinity indicated ninety-five in the shade.
1830. June 7, heavy frost. July 16, the thermometer ninety-two in the shade in the vicinity. July 18 and 19 it was ninety-six.
1832. April 28, a snow-storm which continued thirty-six hours.
1833. March 14, snow very deep. Nearly all the harbors east of Cape Cod closed by ice.
1835. February 8, the bay frozen to the outer islands. Horses and sleighs crossed the bay until March. The longest continuation of severe cold perhaps ever known in the State by the white inhabitants. A great scarcity of hay. Mr. Benjamin Ryder went on the ice to Isle au Haut, from Fox islands.
1837. January 1 a snow-storm commenced, snowing five days that week. The drifts were very deep, and there was no traveling by teams for four or five days.
1839. April 18 (Fast Day) there was a heavy fall of snow.
1840. April 27, rain and snow, and frost the first day of June.
1843. January 4, the coldest day for three years.
1844. January 27, coldest day for the winter. Thermometer twenty-five degrees below zero in Belfast. The bay frozen to the outer islands.
1845. April 26, a snow-storm. A total failure of the potato crop, on account of the potato rot.
1848. An open winter.

1849. Extremely cold on February 16. Bay frozen, and so remained for ten days. Persons crossing the bay on ice-boats.

1850. April 13, a snow-storm. Heavy fall of snow for the season of the year.

1853. February 13, the most severe storm of the season. It is said that no storm had occurred on that date before for one hundred and two years.

1854. January 1, severe snow-storm, and no mail for a week. May 7, ice made one-half inch thick.

1855. February 8, thermometer twenty degrees or more below.

1856. The snow the deepest for years. Roads impassable for two or three days.

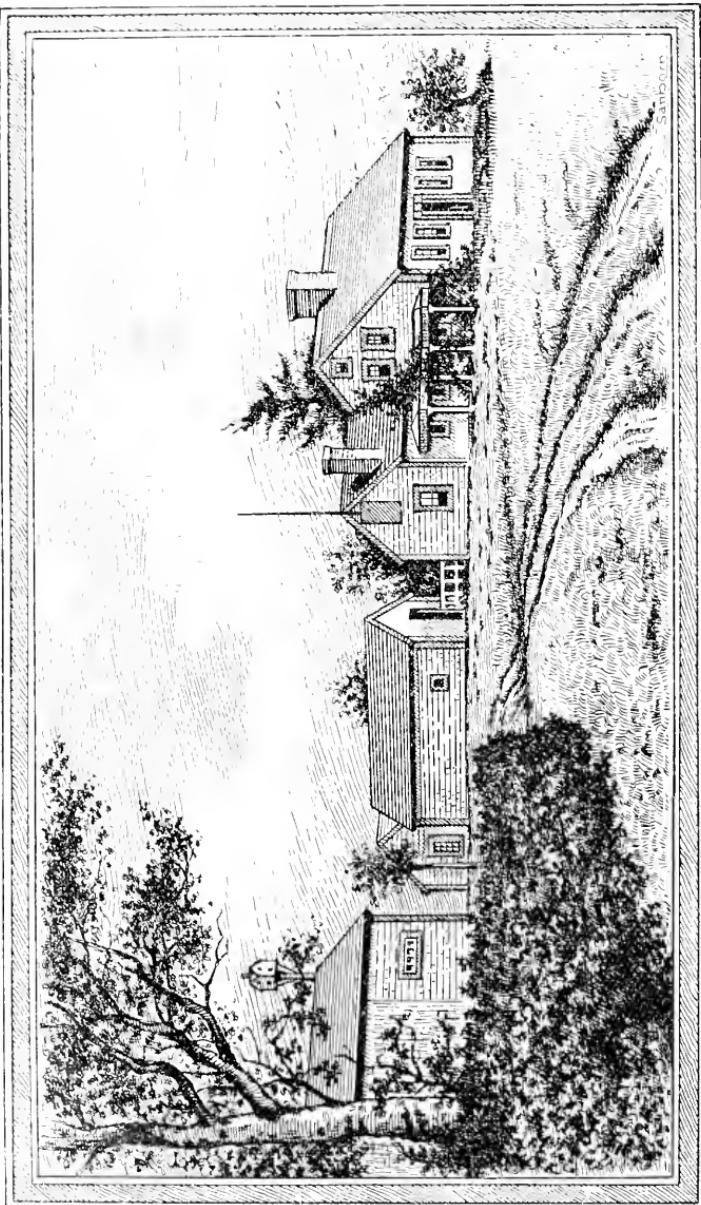

1857. January 18 to 25 the week intensely cold, and almost unceasing storm; known as the cold term of 1857, and undoubtedly the most remarkable of this century. The mercury in the thermometers at Bangor and other places congealed. In Belfast it was thirty-four degrees below; this being the coldest day since the cold Friday of 1810. The inhabitants went to Belfast from Castine on the ice, and all the harbors closed as far south as the Potomac.

1859. February 14 was a very cold day.

1861. February 8, one of the coldest days ever known. Between February 7 and 8 the thermometer showed a change of more than fifty degrees in twelve hours.

1870. Ice was formed one-half inch thick on May 2. The hottest day ever known in the latitude was July 24.

1874. The Colorado beetle (potato bug) made its first appearance.

BENJAMIN AMES HOUSE--LATER JOHN P. FARROW.

1875. In January the bay froze over, and remained frozen until April, teams crossing to Belfast all that time. April 2, Mr. Hooper, of Castine, crossed with his team to Belfast. There was a regular conveyance running daily, carrying passengers to and from Belfast, besides the private teams, which crossed for more than two months. The only accident which happened to the island people was in the case of Capt. George Keller, who lost his horse through a hole in the ice, between Spruce Island and Seal Harbor Point.

OLD HOUSES OF ISLESBOROUGH.

The old house of the Rev. Thomas Ames is still standing. It has been a feature of the town for more than a century, with its huge frame of hewn ash timbers. The house was covered with pine shingles split out by hand, which were perfectly sound on the walls, nailed on with wrought nails. The roof was covered with these shingles, and was re-shingled in 1890. The architecture was cosmopolitan, at the time it was built, and all the old houses were run in very much the same mold. It was one story, and only eight feet posts. According to the most reliable information that can be obtained, it is the oldest dwelling house remaining in Islesborough. It was

NOTES.—In 1865 the drought was very severe in September. The wells and springs failed entirely. The inhabitants of the upper end of the town hauled their water from the meadow pond, and carried their clothes there to be washed.

It is said of an old man in the town that he refused water to one of his neighbors whom he did not like, and he was taken dry, and remained dry until his death; that water would not satisfy his thirst. It was probably his complaint or disease.

The authorities consulted in obtaining these records of the weather were Hon. Joseph Williamson, Dr. George A. Wheeler, of Castine, Mr. Lucius H. Murch, Robert B. Thomas' Almanac, and by oral transmitting of the old inhabitants.

modified somewhat in 1800, in its exterior, by the addition of an ell on the south end, and dormer windows set in the roof, by the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, who own the property and make use of the land for raising vegetables to supply their hotel at Dark Harbor.

The accompanying view shows the house as it was originally built. The chimney still remains in the centre of the house, with the three fire-places somewhat modified. It is covered with plank treenailed to the sill and plate. It stands as firm as when built, and if left to remain, with proper care would last another century.

The first framed house was built on the lower end, and known as the Boardman house. Not being kept in repair it became dilapidated. It was taken down a few years ago, and the old material used for other purposes. The situation of the house was on the land now owned by Jeffrey R. Brackett.

The old house of Deacon John Pendleton is one hundred and fourteen years old. It is owned by the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, and is to be taken down. The walls are covered with plank treenailed to the sill and plate. It was shingled a few years ago, but with this exception there have been but very few repairs on its exterior since it was built, and it is in a remarkable state of preservation, considering its age.

Captain J. Francis Grindle's house has passed its centennial year. Always being kept in repair, it hardly shows its age, excepting in its architecture. It was built by John Gilkey, Esq., a man prominent among the first settlers. It is held with a kind of veneration by Captain Grindle and his relatives. It is situated near the entrance of Gilkey's harbor, and has been a landmark for the mariner for more than one hundred years.

Mr. Abner Marshall's house is situated on the south side of Crow Cove. A part of this house is among the first built in Islesborough. The house was repaired, with additions, painted, and to a certain extent modernized, in 1891.

The old house of the late Henry Boardman, situated on the east side, being among the first built, was repaired a few years since, it being very conspicuous when sailing up or down the east Penobscot bay.

A few of the old settlers' houses are still standing, among which are Mrs. Catherine Sherman's, Mr. Edson Sherman's, Capt. D. A. Warren's, Amasa Hatch's, Luther Farnsworth's, Nelson Gilkey's, and the old Farrow house. These houses are situated on the lower end, or below the Narrows.

At the upper end of the town, the old Coombs house is standing, and in good condition. It is now occupied by the third generation.

The old Warren house has been repaired, and is now used by the Lime Kiln Company.

The Jacob Moody house, situated on the west side, near Seal Harbor, at present occupied by Mr. J. B. Adams, is one of the old houses still remaining. It will probably be replaced by a new and more modern house.

There are some of the original frames of these old houses that remain, but they have a modern appearance, with no similarity of the original.

The writer of these sketches was born in one of those old houses, and has seen them disappear one by one until the present time, when but few remain. In their stead the moneyed men now build their costly cottages, while the natives are obliged to seek other homes. There is a decrease of our inhabitants (as shown by the census), who are gradually leaving the old homes of their fathers, and their children's children will not know the place, excepting by history.

After the log house was built at Henry Boardman's, the timber was hewed from the trees that were felled near the place where the barn was erected, and the old people say that this was the first framed building in Islesborough. The tradition is somewhat contradictory in regard to the first framed building, and I quote authority. Mrs. Charlotte Boardman, a lady of seventy-one years, now living, says that she has often heard her father and the old people make mention of this fact. There is on this estate a double damask rose bush, that was transplanted when they built the log house. At the present time it is flourishing, and this year (1892) it bore more than three hundred roses.

In this barn they held their first meeting, and there was where the first church was organized. Elder Thomas Ames was the minister. They used this barn for a meeting-house until 1804, when the new meeting-house was completed.

NAMES AND DESCRIPTION OF LOCALITIES.

1. The town landing, at the southern end of the island, on the land of Jeffrey R. Brackett, in Gilkey's Harbor. Near this landing was the first cemetery, and here is the oldest gravestone in Islesborough.

2. Dark Harbor, on the east side, near the Islesborough Inn. The proprietors, when the land was first taken, were Oliver and John Pendleton; at present, Islesborough Land Company.

3. Boardman's Bluff, on the east side, above Dark Harbor. The cove that makes in from the bluff, at present, tradition says, was a straight shore when the Boardmans first settled there. This shore has been used for baptisms for more than a century.

4. Capt. Joe's Rock, on the east side, on the shore of the late Capt. Joseph Pendleton estate. There was a salmon berth there, which was used for many years.

5. The Bonnet, on the east side, on the land of the late Joshua Dodge; owned at present by his son, William S. Dodge.

6. Little Island, on the east side, off the land of Mark Pendleton, below Hewes' Point, in Pendleton Cove.

7. Abram's Mountain, near Hewes' Point, on the east side. Elevation one hundred and thirty feet.

8. Hewes' Point, below the Narrows, on the east side, a summer resort, with steamboat wharf, hotel, and summer cottages.

9. Ice-House Hill, near the Narrows. The town road went over this hill. Mrs. Lucy Pendleton was thrown out of a carriage on this hill, breaking her arm. She claimed damages of the town, and entered into litigation, and the case was finally settled in her favor. After a time the road was shifted around the hill.

10. The Narrows, or Carrying Place. At extreme high tide, and heavy wind, the water flows across from west to east Penobscot bay.

11. Bounty Cove, on the east side, near and above the Narrows. Here the first settler built his log cabin, and the place was known as Williams' Cove, Bounty Cove being a modern name.

12. Sabbath-Day Harbor (or Ryder's Cove), on the east side, about a third of the way from the Narrows to Turtle Head. Sabbath-Day Harbor derives its name from the fishermen. In early days the fishermen in east Penobscot bay would come in here and remain over the Sabbath day. A road is in contemplation, running around the head of the harbor to the Bluff.

13. The Bluff, on the north-eastern side of Sabbath-Day Harbor. The elevation is one hundred and forty feet.

14. Coombs' Cove and Parker's Cove, on the east side, above the Bluff.

15. Hutchins' Island, a small island of about fifteen acres, with a sand bar to the main land. Off this island, in east Penobscot bay, is a ledge called by the inhabitants Old Frank Ledge. Its name is derived from Capt. W. Franklin Dodge, who got his vessel ashore on this ledge more than once.

16. Philip Coombs' Point and Beach. The first steam-boat wharf was built off this beach for the T. F. Secor, which commenced running in 1846. The wharf was about half-way from Turtle Head to Sabbath-Day Harbor.

17. Lime Kiln. There was a lime kiln here that was used by the first settlers, but it went to decay. The quarry is now owned by a New York company, who are manufacturing lime at the present time. They built a wharf, and the steamboat regularly makes her landing at this wharf, to and from Belfast.

18. Turtle Head, the northern extremity of Islesborough.

19. Lasell Beach, on the west shore, in Turtle Head Cove; the sea wall making the town road.

20. Kidder's Hill. The high land rising from Turtle Head Cove on the west side, so called, probably, from a family that lived there when the island was first settled. None of their descendants are in town at the present time.

21. Dailey's Cove, on the west shore, to the northward of Sprague's Cove. It is thus designated by a man of that name who once lived there.

HEAD OF SEAL HARBOR.

SEAL HARBOR POINT.

22. The Meadow Pond contains about ten acres when there is no freshet, or heavy fall of rain. Its outlet is in Sprague's Cove. The pond furnishes the supply of ice for the town.

23. Sprague's Cove, on the west side. At the head of the cove there was a shingle mill. The power was obtained from the Meadow Pond. A part of the old dam remains. Mr. Noah Dodge had a tannery here, and the old holes or vats can still be seen. The ledges that lay off the cove are called Sprague's Ledges. One of these ledges is designated the Barley Ledge. A vessel loaded with barley ran on to the ledge and filled with water. The inhabitants got more or less of the damaged barley for their hogs.

24. Seal Harbor, on the west side, is used for a winter harbor to haul up coasting vessels. At the head of the harbor there is a lime quarry, where lime was burnt for a number of years, but it has now gone out of use.

25. The Burying Point, on the south side of Seal Harbor, and the north side of Crow Cove. The elevation is sixty feet. It was used as a burying ground by the first settlers.

26. Crow Cove, on the west side. The head of the cove makes the Narrows.

27. Stone's Hill, south of Crow Cove, and on the west side. Elevation one hundred and twenty feet. It took the name from Stone, who lived there seventy years ago.

28. Gooseberry Nubble. The point which makes out into the bay, on the west shore, above Grindle's Point.

29. Grindle's Point. The entrance to Gilkey's Harbor, west Penobscot bay.

30. Sherman's Point, in Gilkey's Harbor, on the east side.

31. Warren Mountain, on the east side of Gilkey's Harbor. Elevation one hundred and forty feet.

32. Richmond's wharf, in Gilkey's Harbor, near Warren Mountain.

33. Shipyard in Gilkey's Harbor, to the southward of Warren Mountain.

34. Eamies' Cove, in Gilkey's Harbor, opposite Dark Harbor.

Turtle Head derives its name from Governor Pownal. At the same time Owl's Head, at the entrance of the Mussel Ridge channel, was named by him. He says: "About opposite the ridge called Megunticoog begins the south point of an island, which lies lengthwise in the middle of Penobscot bay. It is about twelve miles long, and is called Long Island. The north point, from the shape which it makes from sea, exactly resembling a turtle, we called Turtle Head."*

During the war of 1812 the Penobscot bay was infested with vessels of the enemy, and particularly privateers, cutting off the principal support of the inhabitants of Islesborough, who followed the sea in their coasting vessels. They were often under the necessity of risking their lives for the necessities of life. In the year 1813 Capt. Hosea Bates was taken by a British privateer, and he and his crew were set on shore near Camden. The vessel was put in charge of a prize master. A few of the island people manned their boats, went off and recaptured her; and in about four hours from the time she was first captured they carried her to Camden. In a short time after this † the schooner Fly, a British privateer, was in the roadstead of Owl's Head flying the American ensign, and by this means succeeded in capturing one of our island vessels, and at the same time captured a vessel belonging to Thomaston.

THE ECLIPSE OF 1780.

The total eclipse of 1780 was visible on Long Island. Upon petition of many distinguished and learned men the General Court, by a resolve, Sept. 12, 1780, approved of an expedition to Long Island, and gave assistance. Joseph Williamson, Esq., of Belfast, read a paper giving an account of it, before the Maine Historical Society, which is here given :

Resolve directing the Board of War to fit out the State galley for the conveyance of Rev. Samuel Williams, Hollisian professor of Mathematics, &c., to Penobscot, to make observations on the eclipse of the sun, to be on the 27th of October next. Passed September 12th, 1780.

Whereas representation has been made to this court by the Hon. James Bowdoin, Esq., and others, lovers of learning and mankind, that on the 27th day of October next there will happen in the neighborhood of Penobscot a central and total eclipse of the sun, a phenomenon never apparent in these States since their settlement: and as observations thereof may be of much consequence in science, particularly in geography and navigation; and that the Rev. Samuel Williams, Hollisian professor of Mathematics in this State, will be ready to give his aid, with such assistance as may be proper, to make the necessary observations at the most convenient place near Penobscot: therefore

Resolved, That the Board be and they hereby are ordered and directed to fit out the State galley, with proper stores and accommodation, for the conveyance of the Rev. Samuel Williams, Hollisian professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy at the University of Cambridge, and such attendants as he may think proper to take with him, to make the aforesaid observation on the central and total eclipse of the sun, which will happen on the said 27th day of October, at or near Penobscot, and that the Council be and they are hereby requested to write proper letters to the British commander of the garrison at Penobscot, that the important designs of the said observations may not be frustrated.

[From Memoirs of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.]

Observations of a solar eclipse, October 27, 1780, made on the east side of Long Island, in Penobscot bay. By Rev. Samuel Williams, Hollis professor of Mathematics at Harvard College.

A total eclipse of the sun is a curious phenomenon. From the principles of astronomy it is certain that a central eclipse will occur in some part of the earth in the course of every year; but it is but seldom that a total eclipse of the sun is seen in any particular place. A favorable opportunity presenting itself for viewing one of these eclipses on October 27, 1780, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the University at Cambridge were desirous to have it properly observed in the eastern parts of the State, where, by calculation, it was expected it would be total. With this view they solicited the government of the Commonwealth that a vessel might be prepared to convey proper observers to Penobscot bay, and that application might be made to the officer who commanded the British garrison there, for leave to take a situation convenient for this purpose. Though involved in all the calamities and distresses of a severe war, the government discovered all the attention and readiness to promote the cause of science which could have been expected in the most peaceable and prosperous times, and passed a resolve directing the Board of War to fit out the Lincoln galley to convey me to Penobscot, or any other part at the eastward, with such assistants as I should judge necessary.

Accordingly I embarked, October 9, with Mr. Stephen Sewall, Professor of the Oriental Languages, James Winthrop, Esq., librarian, Fortesque Vernon, A. B., and Messrs.

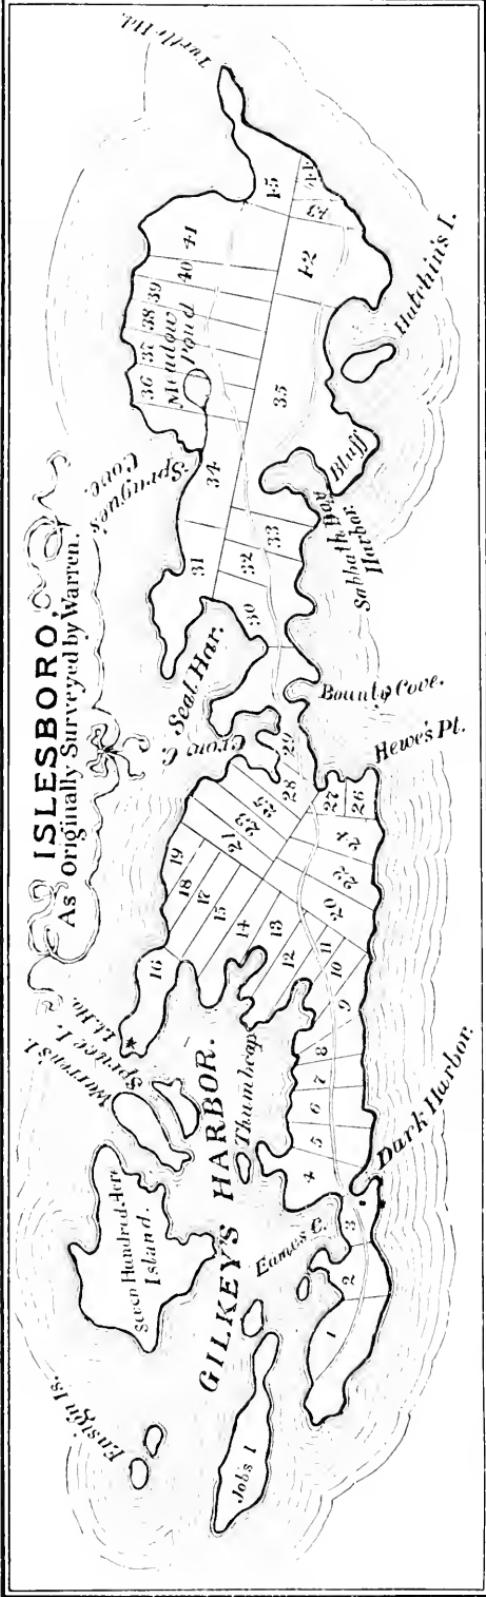

Atkins, Davis, Hall, Dawson, Rensselaer, and King, students in the University. We took with us an excellent clock, an astronomical quadrant of two and one-half feet radius, made by Sissons, several telescopes, and such other apparatus as was necessary. On the 17th we arrived in Penobscot bay. The vessel was directed to come to anchor in a cove on the east side of Long Island. After several attempts to find a better situation for observation, we fixed on this place as the most convenient we had reason to expect, and on the 19th we put our instruments on shore, set up the clock and quadrant in a building facing towards the south, near the house of Mr. Shubael Williams, where the following observations were made: [Here follows a minute account of observations from October 20 to October 27, inclusive, from p. 87 to p. 103, inclusive.]

The greatest obscuration was at twelve hours, thirty degrees twelve minutes, at which time the sun's limb was reduced to so fine a thread, and so much broken, as to be incapable of mensuration. There was little wind while we were making the observations, and no clouds to be seen; but the air was not perfectly clear, being a little thick or hazy.

From the beginning of the eclipse unto the time of the greatest obscuration, the color and appearance of the sky was gradually changing from an azure blue to a more dark or dusky color, until it bore the appearance and gloom of night. As the darkness increased, a chill and dampness was very sensibly felt. In one hour and nineteen minutes, when the light and heat of the sun were rapidly decreasing, there fell two-thirds as much dew as fell the night before or the night after the eclipse. To this we may add, so unusual a darkness, dampness and chill, in the midst of day, seemed to spread a general amazement among all sorts of animals. Nor could we ourselves observe such unusual phenomena without some disagreeable feelings.

As the officer who commanded at Penobscot, in his answer to the application of the government, had limited us to a time wholly inadequate to our purpose—from the 25th to the 30th of October,—we were obliged to make a second application to enter Penobscot bay. Leave was granted, but with a positive order to have no communication with any of the inhabitants, and to depart on the 28th, on the day after the eclipse. Being thus retarded and embarrassed by military orders, and allowed no time after the eclipse to make any observations, it became necessary to set up our apparatus and begin our observations without any further loss of time; in the course of which we received every kind of assistance from Capt. Henry Mowatt, of the Albany, which it was in his power to give.

CHAPTER V.

DOCUMENTARY.

Lease from Isaac Winslow to William Pendleton, 1771.

THIS Indenture of Lease, made the twenty-second day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-one, and in the eleventh year of his Majesty's reign, between Isaae Winslow, of Roxbury, in the county of Suffolk, Esq., on the one part, and William Pendleton, of an island in Penobscot bay, in the county of Lincoln and province aforesaid, known by the name of Winslow's Island, or Long Island :

That the said Isaae Winslow, for the consideration hereafter mentioned, hath demised, leased, and farm let, and by these presents doth lease unto said Pendleton a certain tract of land on Winslow's Island aforesaid, where the said Pendleton now resides, containing six hundred and twenty acres more or less, for and during the term of twenty-five years from the date hereof. And the said William Pendleton, for himself, his heirs and assigns, doth hereby covenant and agree with the said Isaae Winslow that he will ent, clear up and keep down yearly, and every year during said term, ten acres of said land, and subdue the same, so that the whole shall be cleared during said term, and shall be brought to good mowing or tillage. That he will make no strip or waste, or cut any wood off any other part of the land than what he subdues in the manner aforesaid. That he will pay all taxes the premises may be subject to during said lease. That he will in every respect manage and improve the said land in an husbandlike manner, and at the expiration of said lease will deliver up the herein-leased premises to the said

Winslow, his heirs or assigns, with what buildings there may be thereon, and with all the improvements which shall be made, and under proper fencing. And the said Pendleton also engages that he will reserve such lots of wood in proper places, as may be needful for the use of such farm or farms, as shall be on the premises, and that he (be) careful not to plow the same piece of land too often, and such as he doth plow he will dung, and after proper plowing he will sow the same with grass seed.

And the said Winslow on his part, and for his heirs, executors and assigns, doth hereby covenant and agree with the said Pendleton that he or his heirs or assigns shall quietly possess and enjoy the premises hereby leased during the term of twenty-five years, and that at the expiration thereof, and on his compliance on his part with the covenant hereby entered into, he the said Pendleton, his heirs, etc., shall be entitled to a deed of fifty acres of the land hereby leased, such as shall be equal in quality to the rest, taking into consideration the value of the leased premises as they lay, and which shall be accordingly granted to him and his heirs forever.

In witness whereof we have hereunto interehangeably set our hands and seals, this twentieth day of November, 1771.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of

ISAAC WINSLOW. [Seal.]

LAW RELATING TO GATES.

CHAPTER CCCXLVII. An act granting certain privileges to the town of Islesborough.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Legislature assembled, that the inhabitants of the town of Islesborough, upon Long Island, in Penobscot bay, in the County of Hancock be, and they hereby are authorized to erect permanent gates across the principal road leading lengthwise of said island, through said town, at such places and under such directions as shall be considered by the said inhabitants, at their annual meeting in March or April, most expedient for the safe keeping of their cattle and the further improvement of their respective farms.

Section 2. Be it further enacted, that the said inhabitants shall keep said gates in good repair, and shall provide convenient and secure fastenings for the same during all parts of the year, in which they shall require the same to be kept shut; and it shall be the duty of each and every person passing through any of said gates, at any such time or times, to shut after him or them, and to leave shut and secure, with such fastenings provided therefor, such gate or gates; and if any person or persons shall open, and carelessly or with evil intent leave open or injure, or destroy, any or all of said gates, he or they shall be liable to pay all damages of every kind which may thereby accrue to said gate, and to any of said inhabitants, from the breaking loose of cattle through the same; to be recovered by said inhabitant or by any individual suffering such damages, in an action of the case, before any court of competent jurisdiction to try the same.

This act passed February 25, 1835.

This may certify that black woman by the name of Janey has come to John Gilkey. She belongs to Sandwich, and he has _____ and notify the town of the same. She came there in August, tenth day, one thousand eight hundred.

ISLESBOROUGH, September 27, 1800.

This is to notify the inhabitants of the town to meet at house of Capt. Anthony Coombs, on Tuesday, the seventh day of October next. It is the request of the church for to give in their votes and minds concerning the Gospel being settled in the town, either for or against it, both old and young, male and female. And all that cannot attend on the said day send in their votes on the said day.

LETTER FROM JOB PENDLETON, OF ISLESBOROUGH.

Long Island, 29th March, 1789.

To the General Court of Massachusetts.

Gentlemen: I, the subscriber, am possessed of an island laying in Penobscot bay, known by the name of Little Long Island, containing two hundred and four acres (likewise an island joining by a bar at low water, containing thirteen acres), which island I settled in the year 1769, together with Mr. James Matthews and Mr. Shubael Williams. On the 9th day of November, 1769, I purchased James Matthews' third part, likewise on the 23d day of September, 1772, I purchased Mr. Shubael Williams' third part, which I have their deeds to show.

The above written are facts that I can clearly prove; and whereas, gentlemen, you having the power to settle and do justice to the individuals in this remote part of the State, I humbly pray that you will inform me how I may still be in quiet possession of my land, and humbly submit myself to your direction and the laws of this Commonwealth.

I am, gentlemen,

your most obedient and most humble servant,

JOB PENDLETON.

Copy of Deed dated July 19, 1790, and signed by George Miner and Anna Miner.

* George Miner, of Islesborough, in the county of Hancock, yeoman, to Simon Dodge, of the same town and county, carpenter, "one certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in Islesborough aforesaid, containing one hundred and eighteen acres, butted and bounded as follows: Beginning at a spruce tree standing on the shore fifteen rods from the spring landing, marked with letters M. P. for a corner, running from thence north seventy-one degrees, west two hundred and two rods to a yellow birch tree marked with letters M. P. P. corner, thence running south fifty-two degrees, west one hundred and three rods to a yellow birch tree standing in the line of William Grifeth for a corner, thence running south thirty-eight degrees east along said line to a rock maple tree on the shore marked W. G., being William Grifeth's corner bound, thence easterly along the shore bounding thereon to the place first mentioned."

Copy of Deed dated 14th September, 1790.

Zachariah Marshall, of Islesborough, in the county of Hancock, yeoman, to Rathburn Dodge of said Islesborough,

* It is very hard to locate this deed, but it was probably on Seven-Hundred-Acre Island. The deed was of little value, as the land afterwards had to be bought of the proprietor to make the title good. The oldest people living have no knowledge of George Miner, nor of William Grifeth.

There is a ledge in Gilkey Harbor called Miner ledge.

a certain lot or piece of land situated in said Islesborough, bounded as follows, viz: Upon the north beginning at a birch tree at the shore, it being a boundary between Samuel Williams and Zachariah Marshall, thence running south-westerly by the shore forty rods, thence running back, keeping the same width to the head of the said Zachariah Marshall lot. Consideration fourteen pounds.

GRINDLE POINT LIGHT-HOUSE.

The light-house is situated at the entrance of Gilkey Harbor. It was built in 1850. The first keeper was Mr. H. Dunning, second Mansfield Clark, of Islesborough, third Capt. F. Grindle, of Islesborough. Those three men served about three years. The fourth keeper was Charles Nash, fifth Nelson Gilkey, sixth Avery Gilkey, seventh S. H. Higgins, and the present keeper Isaac Hatch.

Gilkey's Harbor is one of the best on the coast of Maine. Easy of access, it is large, with plenty of water for the largest class of vessels. Entering from the west Penobscot bay, leave the light on the port hand, and Warren Island on the starboard hand. Then steer so as to leave a point of Spruce Island on the starboard hand, giving it a berth, as it makes shoal off the island, or keep in mid bay until you have passed Spruce Island Point, when you may anchor and be secure from all winds. When the wind is to the westward and the tide is making ebb, it is hard to get out of this passage. You can go through the harbor leaving Spruce Island on the starboard hand, giving it a berth, but keeping it best aboard, to avoid a sunken rock which lies in the middle of the harbor. Also Long Ledge which you leave on the port hand. Then steer for Philbrook's point, on Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, leaving it on the starboard hand. After passing Philbrook's Point, south-west one-fourth west for the Ensign Islands, leaving them on the starboard hand, keeping then best aboard to avoid sunken ledges that lie off from Job's Island. There is a passage through Gilkey Harbor to the east Penobscot bay, but it would not do for a stranger. If bound through you can always get a pilot, who will take you through to the east Penobscot bay. This harbor ought to be buoyed.

ISLAND LODGE, F. AND A. M.

The first lodge of Free Masons assembled in the year 1857, in the chamber over Thomas Boardman's store. Schooner Rialto and brig Daniel Webster were built in Islesborough.

DISASTERS.

Captain Mathew Ranlett, of the schooner Georgia, went down loaded with coal off Wood Island, on the coast of Maine, December 10, 1878. Captain and crew were all drowned, viz.: Mathew Ranlett, Austin Warren, a son of W. S. Cookson, and a man belonging to the town of Penobscot.

Brig Gazelle, Captain Daniel Philbrook, from Boston for the Island of Cuba, 1844-'5, was wrecked at sea. The crew were twenty-four days on the wreck. They suffered great hardships from exposure and famine, and this was one of the worst shipwrecks that ever happened to Islesborough mariners. That part of the crew who belonged in Islesborough were as follows: Captain Daniel Philbrook, Mr. Haskell, Paul Sawyer, and Sammel Warren. Samuel Warren was killed at the time the brig capsized.

Schooner Remington, Captain Hosea Wyman. The schooner was lost at sea. Captain Wyman and his son Clifford were washed overboard and drowned. The remainder of the crew were taken off by a passing vessel. Captain Wyman had many warm friends and very few enemies, and his loss was severely felt by his friends and neighbors.

Schooner Anne Leland, Captain Onslow Thomas. The vessel was loaded with lumber, from Bangor for New York. She sailed from Gilkey's Harbor, and was never heard from. Mr. Amasa Williams was with the vessel as mate, and a young man from Seven-Hundred-Acre Island. The rest of his crew unknown.

Schooner Lucy and Nancy, Captain Milton Whitecomb. The schooner was loaded with lumber, and she filled with water near Cape Ann. Joel Mixer and Richard Wilson were drowned. Captain Whitecomb was the only one who was saved, and he had a narrow escape. The loss of the Lucy and Nancy was October 9, 1873.

In the year 1862 Captain Jacob Wyman, in the brig Winyaw, loaded with lumber and bricks, sailed from the port of Portland bound for Tortugas, and was never heard from. Captain Wyman and his two brothers, Jairus and Rufus, who were with him, and Josiah Maxcey, one of the crew, all from Islesborough.

Brig Zavilla Williams, Capt. W. Veazie, foundered November 17, 1875. The brig had a load of coal from New York for Bangor. There were three that belonged in Islesborough drowned, viz.: Captain William Veazie, Andrew Spinney, and William G. Coombs, all young men, who were much respected. A monument was erected in the cemetery to the memory of Captain William Veazie.

Brig Almira, Captain Tolman Pendleton, from Bangor for Boston, in October, 1876, with lumber, experienced a heavy gale of wind, and washed to pieces at sea. The crew made a raft of the lumber. They were on the raft seven days, when Captain Pendleton died from exposure, with two of his crew. Mr. Hobart Dodge and the captain's brother were rescued by a fisherman.

Schooner Henry Seavey, Captain Charles Coombs, foundered March 31, 1879. The schooner had a cargo of coal from Rondout, bound to Boston. Captain Charles Coombs, Elbridge Coombs, and Calvin Pendleton were drowned. They were all from Islesborough.

THE MURDER OF ANN BROWN BY HER HUSBAND, CAPT. JOSEPH J. BROWN.

As has been said elsewhere in this history, but one native of Islesborough has ever been committed to the State prison, that man being Captain Joseph J. Brown, who was tried and convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged.

Brown killed his wife, Ann Brown, at their house in Islesborough, April 16, 1856. The murder was a cold-blooded and unprovoked one. Brown was a sailor, and had been master of a small coaster, and was about thirty-five years of age at the time of the murder. His wife was a native of Islesborough, and about thirty years of age when killed. She was an entirely inoffensive woman. Brown, when intoxicated, is said to have treated his wife brutally, beating her on such occasions without ever alleging any provocation. The day before the murder Brown had been to Belfast, and, as usual when there, he had indulged freely in intoxicating liquor. He did not return home until the morning of the murder, arriving there just after breakfast. His family consisted of his wife, one daughter twelve years of age, and an infant of four months. Four other children had been born to them, but had all died young. Before the murder, Mrs. Brown and the two children were the only persons in the house when Brown came home; Mrs. Thomas Fletcher, Brown's sister, who had stayed there over night, having left a short time before. When Brown went into the house he gave his pocket-book to his daughter, and in a few minutes picked up a butcher knife that was lying on the floor and deliberately cut his wife's throat from ear to ear; she begging of him to spare her life, but her dying entreaties were of no avail. The young daughter tried to save her mother, but was powerless to do so. In her efforts to get the knife away from her father her fingers were badly cut.

Immediately after the murder Brown went to Thomas Fletcher's house and said to Fletcher, "Thomas, I want you to go into my house and see to them folks; there is trouble there." Mr. Fletcher at once went to Brown's house, and found Mrs. Brown lying on the floor dead. Brown also went back to the house, went in and looked at his wife's body and said, "She is dead fast enough." He then left the house again and went to an abrupt precipice overlooking the water, not far from his house, with a feigned intention of throwing himself off. He then jumped into a small boat and started in the direction of the outer islands. By this time the alarm had been spread, and Benjamin A. Warren, John Sears, James L. Michaels and Philip Pendleton followed in another boat. Seeing himself pursued, Brown rowed back into a cove, where he procured a large rock and again put to sea. He fastened a rope around the rock and to his neck, carefully securing his knife to the stone, however, so that he could easily cut the rope. He then jumped overboard. He went down, but soon came up, and was secured by the four men who were pursuing him, and was taken ashore and put into the hands of Simon D. Sprague, the constable of the town.

The next day after the murder an inquest was held by John D. Rust, of Belfast, as coroner, with the following jury: Calvin Eames, foreman; F. A. Lewis, Charles Nash, Henry Boardman, Nathaniel Hatch, James Hatch, Orris Clark, William P. Boardman, Leander Allen, Thos. Williams. The jury found the facts to be as already stated in the foregoing account, and rendered a verdict in accordance therewith. Brown was then taken to Belfast, where he was arraigned before F. A. Lewis, Esq., and after hearing the testimony of Pamelia C. Brown (Brown's daughter), who witnessed the murder, Thomas Fletcher, Benjamin A. Warren, and others, Brown was committed to jail to await trial at the May term of the Supreme Court. During the examination he manifested no feeling at all, showing no signs that he regretted the awful deed he had committed.

Brown's trial commenced at Belfast, May 19, 1856, a little over a month after the murder was committed, Judge Seth May presiding. The prosecution was conducted by Honorable George Evans, Attorney General, and James B. Murch, Esq., then of Unity, County Attorney. Honorable Nehemiah Abbott and A. T. Palmer, Esq., were counsel for the prisoner. The trial lasted about a week, and each day the court-house was crowded with an interested audience. The testimony for the State was about the same as at the preliminary examination. The defence was insanity, and several witnesses were introduced to prove that there had been insanity in the Brown family, and an effort was made to prove that Brown himself had shown signs of insanity.

Doctor Henry M. Harlow, for many years superintendent of the Insane Hospital at Augusta, was a witness. The closing arguments were very able on both sides, as was the judge's charge. The jury were out only about an hour, bringing in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The verdict was received by the people present with general satisfaction. The prisoner betrayed no perceptible emotion, and seemed as unmoved as he had all through the trial. On his way to the jail he expressed his satisfaction at the verdict, and regretted that he attempted a defence. The following Monday Brown was taken into court to receive his sentence, and upon being asked if he had anything to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced against him, he arose and spoke as follows: "What can I say? If I did the deed proved against me, I did not know it. I am glad it was no worse. I am glad I did not injure my children or neighbors. I always provided for my children according to my ability. You can do with me as you see fit. My life is in your hands. I don't know as I have anything more to say."

Judge May then, in an affecting and deeply impressive manner, pronounced the sentence of death by hanging, the prisoner to be taken to State prison to await the execution of the sentence, until which time to be put to hard labor in solitary confinement. Brown was at once taken to Thomaston and committed to the State prison; but he was not hanged, as within a few months he killed himself by cutting his throat with a piece of glass. The prevailing opinion at the present time is that he was insane at the time the murder was committed, and the writer joins in that opinion.

CHAPTER VI.

NOTABLE PERSONS.

JOSIAH Farrow was born in Bristol, Me., in 1785, and when but a few years of age moved with his parents to Islesborough, where from that time they made it their home. When but a young lad he commenced going to sea, and continued to follow it for a living for more than twenty years. His principal experiences in that line were in being once shipwrecked, and in being taken prisoner in the war of 1812. His shipwreck was in the early part of his sea-going. He was on a vessel bound to Boston, in the month of December, when they encountered a very severe gale, and were blown off the coast and dismasted. They suffered much from exposure and want of food and water, being on the wreck a number of days. They were at last rescued by a vessel on her passage to Berbice, S. A., to which port they were taken. He came back home on a vessel bound to Boston, after an absence of several months. His friends not having heard from him during all this time, had mourned him as dead. Of course his unexpected return was a joyful surprise.

His prison experience occurred when he was about twenty-eight years old. At that time he commanded a vessel, and was part owner. His business was between Boston and Alexandria, Va. At the time he was taken he was on his passage to Boston, loaded with flour (which was of more than ordinary value, owing to the embargo), having succeeded, under cover of a dense fog, in getting past the blockading squadron at the mouth of the Potomac river. All went well until they reached Cape Cod, when they found they were pursued, their escape being discovered when the fog lifted. It needed but a few hours to have reached their destination. This they were not able to do. They were captured, their vessel burned, and the cargo seized. They were taken to Halifax and kept in prison about six weeks, when they were sent home on parole. Thus all he had acquired in his early life was taken from him and he had to commence life anew.

Soon after this he was married to Mary Boardman, the daughter of one of the early settlers of the island. He purchased a farm, the one on which he always lived while in Islesborough. He did not however remain at home. Leaving his wife with competent help to carry on the farm, he again took a vessel and commenced running between the same ports he previously had, Boston and Alexandria. In this he continued for about three years with pretty good success, when he left going to sea and returned to his farm. Agricultural pursuits were very congenial to him, which he made both profitable and pleasant; improving on the old methods and introducing new ones. His farm became the best in the place. He took an active part in the affairs of the town, was one of the selectmen for a number of years, and one of the foremost and most zealous advocates in whatever he thought would promote the public good. Earnest in looking after the welfare of the schools, that they had comfortable school buildings and competent teachers. Always interested in the success of the young, he aided many in standing in life.

He was one of the earliest promoters of the temperance cause, starting a temperance society and holding meetings. Being a justice of the peace, many came to him to be married. He moved to Belfast in 1833, but always kept up a kindly interest in his early friends and home. There he became interested in shipping, being an owner in many vessels, and making the business a remunerative one. He was a member of Phoenix Lodge of Free Masons, and very earnest in the work. His opportunities for schooling were very limited, but his fondness for reading enabled him to overcome very much of his early disadvantages. He was a zealous abolitionist, but did not live to see the success of the cause. His death occurred in Belfast, in August, 1861, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

SHUBAEL WILLIAMS.

Shubael Williams came from Stonington, Connecticut. His father was Isaiah Williams; his mother was a Townley. They were originally from Wales. Mr. Williams had suffered greatly from the English in times past. He was taken from his vessel and put on board a man-of-war, and had to serve three years, leaving a wife and three small children that were expecting him home in a few days. At the time of the Revolutionary war a sailor was missing from one of the men-of-war at Castine, by the name of Jackson. He became enamoured with a young lady at Islesborough, so he thought he would run the risk of paying her a visit. He started on the ice, and was drowned before he reached the shore. His body was found and buried on Hewes' Point. They accused Mr. Williams of helping him away. He was arrested and sentenced to receive sixty lashes with a cat-of-nine-tails. They gave him forty, and found he would die, and revoked the rest of the sentence.

He was a man of considerable means when he came, and took up land a year before he brought his family. When he brought his family he brought a year's provision, leather and cloth enough to last them two or three years.

This was in the year 1780. The enemy took possession of Castine June 12, 1779. Williamson's History of Maine, Dr. Geo. A. Wheeler's History of Castine says June 17th.

OLD SETTLER'S LOG CABIN.

ISLAND INLET, SPRAGUE'S COVE.

So they did not suffer, like most of the first settlers. At one time they saw a vessel standing towards the shore. He thought it was a privateer, and hurried the women and children into a boat, and went to Belfast and stayed six weeks at James Miller's, there being but three houses in Belfast at that time, on the west side of the river. When they came back they found everything just as they had left it. He built a log house at first, and afterwards a framed house. In this house was the first window glass ever seen in the town. He took the lumber from the forest, and dug the rocks and rolled them into a crevice in the bank, and burned the lime for the chimneys and plastering. The mortar made from this lime lasted good and solid for seventy-five years. His last work was hewing the frame for the meeting-house. He was a man of integrity, honest and upright in all his dealings. His wife was Abigail Turner.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM PENDLETON,

From Stonington, Conn., came here prior to 1769, when his family came. He settled on the lower end of the island. Mr. Jeffrey Richardson Brackett now owns the estate. He was the most prominent man on the island for many years. In the Revolutionary war he traded with the British. The Committee of Correspondence,* chosen at Saint George, June 6, 1775, wrote to him July 17:

"To Capt. William Pendleton.

Sir: We can not think proper for you to contrack any trail which we suppose is for the king's troops, which you no by the Congress orders is contrary to our obligations, which we are determined to adhear to.

Per orders of the committee.

J. SHIBLES, Clerk."

* History of Warren, page 170.

He was the first selectman of the town at its organization, April 6, 1780, and continued to hold office for many years, retaining the respect of his fellow townsmen. He moved to Northport about 1795, and died there August 28, 1820, at the age of ninety-eight years.

ELDER THOMAS AMES.

One of the best known settlers of Islesborough was Thomas Ames, from Marshfield, Mass., where he was born. In a petition to the General Court, in 1787, he and his son Jabez both signed their names Eames. About 1784 he settled on the south-west side of the island, at what is now known as Gilkey's Harbor. Samuel Turner was a prior settler, and July 13, 1784, he quitclaimed to Thomas Ames, for four hundred and twenty dollars (Hancock Reg., vol. 2, page 119), one certain tract or parcel of land, being on Long Island, containing three hundred and fifty acres more or less, being lots Nos. 12, 13 and 14, on a plan taken by Joseph Chadwick from the south end of said island. Subsequently he sold a part of the purchase to Joseph Jones, his son-in-law, March 26, 1793, and to his son, Jabez Ames, another part the same day. It is presumed that Mr. Ames quitted the claim of General Knox under the Waldo heirs. August 23, 1815, he sold his homestead, containing eighty-five acres, more or less, for eight hundred and fifty dollars, to Joseph Woodard (Hancock Reg., vol. 236, folio 114). Woodard was from Hingham, Mass. He moved up the island. He sold the lot to Capt. James Sherman. Woodard was drowned in West Penobscot bay. Years afterward the estate came into the hands of J. P. Farrow. The house built thereon is said to be the oldest now standing on the island. For situation it is unsurpassed on the coast of Maine, and by those qualified to know, it has been said that the view of the bay from this point is not surpassed by any view of the bay of Naples. J. P. Farrow has recently sold this property to the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, of Philadelphia.

Thomas Ames was moderator of the first town meeting in Islesborough, in 1789. Previous to 1800 he began to preach as an itinerant Baptist preacher. He was ordained minister of the church in Islesborough in 1804, and continued as such until 1809. He was a most worthy and acceptable preacher. He sold his homestead to Joseph Woodard in 1815, and soon after moved on to the main land. He died in Appleton, February 10, 1826. His posterity are numerous and highly respected, many first-class master mariners being among them.

SAMUEL WARREN, (JR.)

Samuel Warren (Jr.) died at the age of eighty-seven, in Islesborough. He was a man of ability and integrity, quiet and peaceful, like most men of his religious opinion, being a Quaker. He was a surveyor, and was employed by the town, laying out their roads, and by the inhabitants to survey their land. He held offices of trust in town, and was looked up to for advice by the old and young, and never betrayed his trust on any occasion. The good qualities of this old-school gentleman descended to his children, who were among the most respected of its townsmen. This family, of five boys, have all made a record and passed away, and his grand-children, now living, can look back to their forefathers with pride. The record of his family will be found among the family records of Islesborough families.

MRS. CATHERINE SHERMAN,

Daughter of Jabez Ames and widow of Robert Sherman, now living, at ninety-one years of age. She is known as aunt Katy by the whole town, and regarded with homage and respect in the estimation of the old and young. All her intimate acquaintances, companions and partner have passed over to the banks of the dark river. Many is the kind act she has done for her neighbors when in sickness or distress, and she will long be remembered after she has passed away. In the house where she now lives she has lived ninety years, being but one year old when her father built the house. This has always been her home, and where she raised her family. Mrs. Thomas, her daughter, has the care of this remarkable old lady in her declining years. Her retentive memory is bright and clear, and her faculties are unimpaired. The writer of this is indebted to her for valuable information. Her family record may be found elsewhere.

BENJAMIN THOMAS,

Married in Falmouth, December 24, 1767, Mary, daughter of Robert Jordan, of Brunswick.

CAPT. ISAAC W. SHERMAN.

Capt. Isaac W. Sherman, of the ship Frederick Billings, the largest sailing ship belonging in the United States, when launched. He was born in Islesborough, educated in one of the common schools, married in Islesborough, and lived there for a time, then removed to Camden, where he still resides.

CAPT. WALTER F. DODGE.

Captain Walter F. Dodge took charge of one of the coasting vessels in early life, when he amassed considerable property, owning in a large number of the coasting vessels. He left off going to sea and went into trade, and at the age of thirty-five was thought by many to be wealthy. He removed to Boston, and there meeting with adverse fortune, he commenced to go to sea once more. He was taken by the Confederate cruisers, his vessel burnt, and he carried to Richmond, everything taken from him, even his watch, and left to get home the best way he could. Reference to his family record in the genealogy of families.

Capt. Mark Pendleton's four sons are among the most enterprising of the Islesborough families, owning largely in navigation. They have become wealthy, and take a great interest in town affairs.

CAPT. JOSEPH W. COLLINS.

Capt. Joseph W. Collins was born in Islesborough, August 8, 1839. His boyhood days were spent as a fisher lad, going boat-fishing with his grandfather before he was nine years old. His tenth birthday was spent at sea on board a fishing schooner. In 1862, when only twenty-three years old, young Collins was appointed to the command of a fishing vessel, and has since commanded some of the finest schooners engaged in the fishing business from Gloucester, Mass., most of the time being at sea the whole of each year.

In 1879 he became connected with the United States Fish Commission, and entered upon the work of making a statistical inquiry into the fisheries of New England, for the tenth census, under the direction of Prof. G. Brown Goode. In the spring of 1880 he was appointed on the staff of the United States Commissioner to the International Fischerei Austellung, at Berlin, and accompanied the commissioner to that city. After returning from Europe Capt. Collins resumed the inquiry he had previously been engaged upon, but in December, 1880, he was ordered to Washington, where he took up the work of preparing reports relating to the fisheries of the country, which were published in the Fisheries and Fishery Industries of the United States, issued by the United States Commission of Fish and Fisheries. He rapidly attained distinction as a writer in this line, and also exhibited great facility in preparing illustrations of fishing crafts and fishing scenes, with the details of which he was thoroughly familiar.

In 1883 he was one of the staff sent by the United States to represent this country and make a display of its fisheries and fishery resources at the great International Fisheries Exposition held at London in that year; and it is largely due to his superior knowledge and familiarity with the fisheries of this country that the United States succeeded in obtaining such a large number of the prizes awarded at the exposition. Capt. Collins' intimate knowledge of the fisheries and their needs has given him many opportunities for offering suggestions for their improvement. He conceived the idea while abroad of a new design for vessels, and agitated the matter thoroughly in the press of New England, where it was given wide circulation in 1886. He was given the opportunity by Professor Spence F. Baird, then United States Commissioner of Fisheries, to put his ideas to practical use, which resulted in the schooner Grampus, of the Commission, which was the pioneer of the new type. He has made many cruises of investigation in the vessels of the Fish Commission. For two years—from 1886 to 1888—he was in command of the schooner Grampus.

In 1888 he was appointed in charge of the division of fisheries of the United States Fish Commission, and has since had charge of the work. In the same year he was appointed as representative of the Fish Commission to prepare its exhibits at the Centennial Exposition of the Ohio Valley and Central States, held at Cincinnati. In 1884 Capt. Collins organized the section of Naval Architecture in the United States National Museum, under the direction of Prof. G. Brown Goode, and since that date has been Honorary Curator of this interesting collection.

In 1890 he was nominated by the United States Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, Hon. Marshall McDonald, to represent that bureau on the Government Board of Management and Control at the World's Columbian Exposition, and was duly appointed to the position by President Harrison. Undoubtedly Captain Collins is the best informed man regarding fishery expositions and their conduct to be found in the country.

GAMALIEL PENDLETON.

Gamaliel Pendleton died at his home, July 12, 1892, aged sixty-nine years and eleven months, on the same farm where he was born. In his younger days he followed the sea. The latter part of his life he was engaged in agriculture. The upright character given him by his neighbors was never contradicted, as he had no enemies. He had not only the esteem but the kindness of all who knew him. His family were present in his last sickness, and doing every thing for him that could be done, which was a consolation to him. In his business affairs his word was as good as his bond, and his promise to pay would not be outlawed as long as he lived.

"Time, place and action may with pains be wrought,
But Genius must be born, and never can be taught."

Dryden.

STEPHEN PENDLETON.

Stephen Pendleton, in 1781, when hardly nineteen years old, was taken by a number of British partisans and made to go as pilot to the dwelling of Mr. Soule, a wealthy man and a staunch friend of liberty, in Waldoborough. They entered the house, seized and bound him, and told Pendleton he might have his choice, either to help plunder the house or guard Soule. Not liking the idea of plunder he chose the latter. They proceeded to ransack the house and were about to break open the desk, when Soule, unwilling to lose his treasure, made such exertions to free himself in defiance of Pendleton's threats to shoot him, that he was on the point of succeeding. Pendleton, trembling for the safety of himself, fired and shot him, severely wounding his wife at the same time. This raised an alarm, and the marauders were glad to escape to the woods, concealing themselves as they could by day and travel by night, subsisting on the bark of trees, till by a circuitous route back of the mountains they reached Penobscot and returned to Biguyduce. Pendleton after the war lived in New Brunswick.* He came back to Islesborough, and in after life became respected.†

Others equally deserving might be made mention of did our limits permit—sea captains, farmers and traders who have contributed so much to the business of the place. The reader is referred to the genealogical table of the families. I have tried to make the work thorough and exhaustive, until new facts are brought to light should be regarded as corroborating the conclusion to which I have arrived.

CHAPTER VII.

PACKETS AND BOATS.

THE insular situation of Islesborough, the communication between the island and the main land, has quite a history. The first settlers had small boats. The inhabitants in pleasant weather would cross the bay when it became necessary, generally three or four going together, to get their stores, or after a doctor. The main supplies were brought in their coasting vessels, and their produce was shipped by these vessels to Boston. After the mail route was established between Lincolnville and Islesborough, there was a regular communication every Thursday from Gilkey's Harbor, by the mail boat. Capt. Thomas Gilkey built an open boat, which was called the Dove. He found employment for her, carrying cattle to and from the island, and she was used for that purpose for a good many years. In the fall of the year she would carry the grist to Camden to be ground. At the upper end of the town they owned several small vessels, which, after they had done fishing in the fall, they would use for packets to go to Castine, say twice a month in the winter, with occasionally a trip to Belfast. They finally altered the mail route to Northport, and had a mail twice a week, discontinuing the lower post office and establishing the upper, near Seal Harbor. About this time Mr. Keller bought the old Castine packet Superior, and would go to Belfast for freight and passengers; but had no regular days, and only went when there was enough to go to make it an object. Not until 1859 was a regular packet line established from Islesborough to Belfast. The yacht Water Sprite made regular trips, leaving Islesborough for Belfast Monday, returning same night, over Tuesday, back Wednesday, over and back Thursday, over Friday, back Saturday. Using her for two years, she was found to be too small for the route, and the Planet was bought, the business increasing, and the route being a paying one.

The first packet master of the Planet was J. P. Farrow. Next was Thomas Merrithew, next W. P. Sprague, who finally sold to Capt. Wilson Coombs, who altered her over into a steamboat. The schooner Nora was built in Islesborough. She ran to Camden, with occasionally a trip to Belfast. The Spy and Nautilus were also Camden packets.

STEAMBOATS.

About the year 1847 a steamboat wharf was built at the head of the island. The steamer T. F. Secor, Capt. Thomas B. Sanford, on her route from Belfast to Ellsworth, made a landing for several seasons. She commenced running in 1846.

In 1850 the steamer Lawrence made her landings, taking the place of the T. F. Secor. She called here for several seasons.

In 1871 the Argo, a side-wheel boat, stopped here on her way to Ellsworth and Belfast each way.

In 1874 the steamer Pioneer ran to Castine and Islesborough, making a landing at Sabbath-Day Harbor.

The next boat was the steamer May Field, Capt. Samuel H. Barbour, who ran her one winter, until the May Queen was put on. The May Queen was built in Belfast for Capt. Gilmore, expressly for the Belfast and Castine route.

The steamer Planet was an opposition boat against the May Queen one season. Both boats were sold and taken off the route. Captain Barbour built a boat at Bangor named the Florence, and put her on the Belfast and Castine route, in charge of Capt. Decker. She ran for more than four years. Then she was sold, and was followed by the Electa. She continues on the route, and runs daily, carrying the mail, and has given universal satisfaction.

Steamers Hurricane and Mabel Bird ran a short time, while the regular boats were repairing.

In 1890-'91 steamer Emmeline ran a season from Castine to Rockland, stopping at Islesborough each way.

BANGOR & BAR HARBOR STEAMSHIP CO.

In 1875 Capt. Samuel H. Barbour built the May Field, and ran from Bangor to Bar Harbor. Stopped at Ryder's Cove each way. The boats that belonged to this line were the Bangor, Queen City, Cimbria, Henry Morrison and Sedgwick. They make a landing at Ryder's Cove and Hewes' Point daily. The Bangor and Queen City have been sold.

Steamer Castine, from Belfast to Oceanville, leaves Belfast at 10 A. M., for Islesborough, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

In 1891 a wharf was built at Dark Harbor. Steamer City of Richmond, from Portland for Machias, stops each way.

An excursion boat leaves Bangor Saturday, at 3 P. M., for Ryder's Cove and Hewes' Point, returning back Monday, through the summer season.

Islesborough has a future before it as a great summer resort, offering many attractions to the pleasure tourist. The opportunities for bathing, sailing, rowing, fishing and driving are not excelled on the seashore in Maine. Beautiful walks, level roads, variety of scene, and a place for rest and vacation for the old and young. The aged who seek rest and the young who seek exercise can spend a vacation here with pleasure, and can find accommodations suited to their tastes and means. There can be obtained an abundant supply of pure water, and the danger from contagious disease and destructive fevers is obviated. A board of health looks carefully to the sanitary conditions, and cleanliness is not only enjoined but enforced.

As there is no back country, no poison arising from animal or decayed matter can exist. Competent physicians are in attendance at the hotels through the season. Invalids visiting Islesborough can have the best attendance the country affords. Good livery stables are connected with the hotels. The drives are only to be seen to be appreciated. In the township are tracts of woodland, and groves of large spruce, beech, maple, birch, ash and cedar. There is direct communication by steamboat from the island to and from Rockland, Mt. Desert, Castine, Belfast, and other points.

The Islesborough Inn is open from the last of June until September, in charge of a thoroughly competent manager. In addition to its large number of rooms, there are music rooms, containing a stage for private theatricals, billiard rooms, etc. It is one of the best appointed hotels on the coast of Maine.

INSCRIPTIONS FROM GRAVESTONES,

In the burying grounds and cemeteries on the island.

The old Burying Ground at the extreme lower end of the Island.

1781. Judith, daughter of Jonathan and Jane Pendleton, died April 23, 1781. The oldest gravestone on the island.

1784. Mrs. Peggy, first wife of John Pendleton, died Feb. 21, 1784, aged 3-. The last figure obliterated on the gravestone.

1786. Sally, wife of Job Pendleton, died August 16, 1786, aged 34.

1794. Job Pendleton, died Jan. 25, 1794, aged 47. The epitaph on this old stone is not common:

"Beneath this stone I rest my head
In slumbers sweet ; Christ blest the bed "

1802. Jane, first wife of Jonathan Pendleton, died Feb. 25, 1802, aged 47.

1803. Jonathan Sprague, died in New Shoreham, R. I., Aug. 2, 1803. His wife, Lydia Dodge, died in Islesborough, June 4, 1848. Both natives of New Shoreham.

1806. Betsey, wife of Hosea Coombs, died July 16, 1806, aged 38.

1807. Rebecca, first wife of Thomas Ames, first minister, died June 28, 1807, aged 66. Thomas Ames, died in Appleton, Me., February 10, 1826.

1807. Israel Dodge, drowned Feb. 17, 1807, age 35.

Deacon Joseph Boardman was born in Boston, Mass., Aug. 12, 1753; died in Islesborough, Nov. 28, 1831, aged 81 years. Mary, his wife, was born in Stonington, Conn.; died in Islesborough, July, 1847. Gravestones.

Joseph and Mary (Pendleton) had six sons and three daughters, who lived to womanhood and manhood's estate, and all of whom married excepting the second son. All the daughters had master mariners for husbands, and all the sons were also master mariners excepting the youngest, who in early life quit the sea to care for the folks at home. Their names were:

- i. Thomas, born Jan. 25, 1775; died in Islesborough, Oct. 25, 1849. Lydia, wife of Thomas, died Oct. 4, 1843, aged 67 years.
- ii. Joseph, born March 14, 1777; lost at sea, date unknown, probably from the foundering of his vessel. He had become a resident of Swanboro, N. C., and owned and sailed the brig Polly and Betsey, in the West India trade. The last heard of him was a marine report that he spoke another vessel just at nightfall, in heavy weather, reporting his brig as leaking badly, and asked the captain of the other vessel to lie by him until morning. When the morning came he had disappeared forever.
- iii. William, born July 28, 1779; died in Islesborough, August 9, 1855.
- iv. Stephen, born May 24, 1782; died in Hope, June 30, 1855.
- v. Isaac, born August 27, 1792; died in Belfast, Sept. 22, 1862.

- vi. Henry, born May 14, 1794; died April 17, 1872, on the old homestead in Islesborough.
- vii. Mary, married Josiah Farrow; died in Belfast, Oct. 31, 1862, aged 77.
- viii. Lydia, married first, Stone; second, Warren; died in Belfast.
- ix. Margaret, married William Stone; died in Belfast.*

CHAPTER X.

FAMILY GENEALOGIES.

I HAVE been aided in the preparation of these genealogies* by town records, family bibles, and by traditions of the older people. The town records were, a part of the time, kept very poorly, and many of the families had no records; so that errors are unavoidable. Some of the descendants of the early settlers have changed the spelling of their names, and that has increased the difficulty. Of the sixty families who settled here prior to the incorporation of the town, only one descendant has been an inmate of the State prison, and that was without doubt a case of insanity. The descendants of these families in Islesborough were educated in the common schools, and were almost invariably taken from school at the age of ten or twelve years, to go on board of the coasting vessels, which would haul up for the three winter months, when they could go to school from five to eight weeks. Very few, if any, went to the winter school after they were seventeen years old. These men have made sea captains, and sailed and done business all over the world, and I have never known a case where their education was at fault in doing business.

* It is assumed that all persons named belonged in Islesborough.

EAMES FAMILY.

Elisha Eames was son of Deacon Josiah Eames, of Marshfield and North Bridgewater, Mass.* Elisha came to Islesborough about 1800. He purchased the Oliver Pendleton farm, near Dark Harbor, and settled on it. Pendleton was the original settler, and had a quitclaim deed from General Knox and the Waldo heirs, Nov. 13, 1799, of 100 acres of land near Dark Harbor. Pendleton moved to Camden and died there. This beautiful estate has remained in the family until recently, when it was sold by Edwin Eames to Mr. J. D. Winsor, of Philadelphia, and his associates, who have built a wharf, and also an elegant hotel thereon. Mr. Eames was town clerk

* Mitchell's History of Bridgewater, Mass., says that Deacon Josiah Eames and his wife, also an Eames, went from Marshfield to North Bridgewater in 1770, and that his family went to Long Island. Elisha Eames, their son, was in Islesborough shortly after 1800.

Thomas Pendleton,* son of James, and grandson of Caleb Pendleton, was born in Westerly, R. I., January 3, 1719. Married Doreas, daughter of Tristram Dodge, of Block Island, in 1741. He was a master mariner, engaged in the whale fishery to Greenland, and on one of his voyages put in to Castine, where, excited by the beauty of Penobscot bay, he determined to settle. In 1753 he sold his estate in Westerly for eleven hundred and thirty pounds, and in 1766 moved to Long Island, where he took up nine hundred acres. His whole family soon followed, and he settled them on his land on the island. His house was a few rods to the north-east of Dark Harbor. He took an active part in town affairs, and his name often occurs in the first town records. In person he was tall, with red hair and blue eyes. He died in 1809. His wife died in 1796. Children, all of Islesborough:

Stephen Pendleton was the youngest son of Thomas. He was born in Westerly, R. I., February 9, 1763. He married in Islesborough, September 25, 1786, to Prudence, daughter of Simon Dodge. She was born on Block Island May 23, 1763. They settled in Islesborough on land bought of Joshua Pendleton. His house was where the house of the late Captain Elisha K. Pendleton now stands. When the war of the revolution commenced, Stephen was serving in the British navy, under Capt. Hendy, and was retained three years. He got his discharge by taking oath of parole, and then returned to Islesborough, where he found employment shipping wood to Cape Cod from Pendleton's Cove. He was six feet one inch high, and weighed two hundred pounds; was noted for his great muscular ability. After the war he was employed by the British to assist Capt. Hendy in surveying the line between Maine and New Brunswick. He purchased eight hundred acres near St. Andrews. He was living in New Brunswick when the war of 1812 commenced. He then returned to his home in Islesborough, joined an American privateer, and was in several engagements; taken prisoner, paroled, and returned to Islesborongh, where he lived until 1827. He took an active part in all that helped to build up the town, more especially in building the roads. He was a member of the Baptist church. His pew in the meeting-house was No. 22. Peleg Pendleton, son of William Pendleton, was born in Westerly, R. I., February 12, 1732. He was a mariner, and was at the eastward often prior to the Revolutionary war. He came to Maine about 1782, and tradition says lived for a while on this island, and in 1783 removed to that part of Prospect now Searsport. He has now many descendants here. It is safe to say that his sons who came here, and his grandsons, have all been master mariners, and the sails of their ships have whitened every sea known to commerce. Capt. Peleg Pendleton died July 12, 1810. He married in Stonington, Ann Park, September 7, 1758. She was a woman fit to be the wife of an emigrant to a new country. She died March 20, 1817. Children, all born in Stonington:*

PHILBROOK FAMILY.

Jonathan Philbrook, with his wife and nine children, came from Greenland, N. H., to the second parish in Georgetown, now Bath, in 1742. He built a house on the Point, near where the mansion of Governor King stood. He was the principal inhabitant of the town, and in May, 1753, Jonathan Philbrook and forty-six others petitioned that they might be set off into a separate or second parish. The petition was granted, and the second parish was organized April 2, 1754, at the house of Philbrook. He and his son, Lieutenant Jonathan, were two of the committee to procure a minister. In 1755 he and his sons built two coasting vessels, and I think they may be called the pioneers of shipbuilding in Bath. Jonathan Philbrook, Jonathan Philbrook, Jr., and Job Philbrook, were petitioners for the new county (of Lincoln), in 1752.

William Philbrook, Joshua Philbrook, and Job Philbrook, were soldiers in the first company of the second parish in Georgetown (now Bath), in 1757. In May, 1766, Job Philbrook was taken prisoner by the Indians, and carried to Canada, but was exchanged, and returned in October following.

Of the sons of Jonathan, William and Job came here. Tradition has it that Joseph also came, but I do not find him.

William Philbrook was born in 1718. One account says he married Charity Grant, but I find that he was published to Mary Grant, in Georgetown, Sept. 18, 1844. He settled on Seven-Hundred-Acre Island. Jonathan Stone, who surveyed Seven-Hundred-Acre Island in 1785, says he found "William Philbrook there," and that he came before the war. He was a petitioner from the island to the General Court in 1787. He was drowned about 1789, or just prior to that time. Children, as far as I see:

- i James, was in Hampden 1777; had lot 78 there.
- ii David, settled in Gardiner.
- iii Jonathan, came here and lived in several places. Was in Hampden, in 1786. He was drowned prior to 1800. He had wife Mary, and son John, of Hampden, and Mercy, who m. John Bullock, of Camden.
- iv William, Jr., settled in Islesborough.
- v Joseph, settled in Islesborough.
- vi Abigail, m. Mark Perry or John Perry, of Camden.
- vii Molly, m. Joshua Lassell, of Lassell Island. Nine children.

William Philbrook, Jr., of Thomaston, and Diodama Lassell, of Warren, were published in Thomaston, May 6, 1780. He probably moved on to Seven-Hundred-Acre Island soon after. He was selectman in 1795. He was a large, powerful man, and his brother Joseph, though not equal to him in size, was a man of great muscular strength. During the war of 1812 their vessel was captured and they were taken prisoners by the British and sent to Castine. While on their way the prize crew went below to rest. The Philbrooks had a fight with the crew, took them prisoners, recaptured their vessel, and delivered the British as prisoners to the proper authorities. Children, probably :

- i Elisha, m. Polly or Dolly Williams.
- ii William, m. Lucy Drinkwater, of Northport. Published July 3, 1824.
- iii Joseph.
- iv Daniel.
- v Oliver, m. Anna Stover, October 22, 1825.
- vi Jabez.
- vii Ambrose.

Jabez Philbrook, son of William Philbrook, Jr., married Judith Thayer, of Vinalhaven, Dec. 23, 1820. He died in 1884. Children, born in Islesborough :

David Henderson Rose, born in Islesborough, Oct. 8, 1830; married Julia A. Knowlton, of Northport. Few men had a more active life, and few men in Islesborough have met with more success commanding a vessel at a very young age. His voyages were foreign and coastwise, always giving satisfaction to his owners. Pleasant, agreeable and sociable, he had many friends and no enemies. For forty years he followed the sea, and during that time he never met with a serious accident, never losing a vessel, and always making money for his owners. During his last sickness he was patient, suffering without complaint. All that kind hands could do was done for him, to smooth the way from whence no traveler returns. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and was buried with Masonic rites. He died at his home, Feb. 21, 1890. Children:

VIEW SOUTHWARD FROM ISLESBOROUGH INN.

ISLESBOROUGH AS A SUMMER RESORT.*

THE gem of Penobscot Bay, like all of greatest value, best shows its worth in a plain setting; though the ever-changing heavens and their faithful mirror beneath can scarcely be termed a plain, but a perfect setting for the scintillations and the shadows of this treasure. From the bold cliffs on the upper point to the sloping, shelving beach at the southern extremity, each shore is cut and grooved into entrancing irregularity of inlet, bay, beach, bluff, until there are no duplicates of picture the length and breadth of this charming isle. More beautiful in its ever-changing moods than can be reproduced by art.

When it first became known to the outside world, as a pleasure ground, health resort, or blessed retreat from the busy, bustling crowd, there are no exact dates, but a generation ago many names of note are found as habitues of this spot, and doubtless, could we read the soul's record, much of the inspiration which photographs the wild flower or landscape, the summer sea or rolling wave of more than one poet's pictured verse, is due to his love of this spot.

* This chapter was contributed to this history by a lady who has spent twelve summers on the island, and who is abundantly qualified to write.

On which of the headlands of this island lay our Maine poet^{*} when he sang :

"I lay upon the headland height and listened
To the incessant sobbing of the sea
In caverns under me,
And watched the waves that tossed and
Fled and glistened
Until the rolling meadows of amethyst
Melted away in mist."

Those who have feasted their eyes on the beauties of Turtle Head and its surroundings, need only the name to recall the spot, beautiful for situation; its rounded outline jutting into the upper bay, and so densely covered with the fragrant pine that avenues have been cut through the groves to allow frequent views of the ever-changing waters below and beyond. Across the bay eastward stands the bold promontory of Castine Head, with its "street lamp of the ocean" prominent on the rugged cliff, a grateful point to the eyes of artist as well as mariner. Beyond the water at the north the view is made picturesque by the bold shore of Fort Point, its rounded top crowned with the summer home "Woodcliff," and its horse-shoe beach lined with cottages, owned by devotees at the shrine of beauty spread before them here. Westward, over the gleaming bay, lie the irregular shores of the pretty city of Belfast, and the curves and beaches of the old towns of Northport and Lincolnville; while the horizon line discovers ranges of undulating hills and mountains, sloping to the sea in green field or groves of evergreen, or pastures fringed with the cone-shaped cedar.

The rides to Turtle Head, both on the eastern and western shores, are justly designated two of the most beautiful on the island. The place is of interest to all. Its natural attractiveness is increased by the artistic taste and hospitality of the dwellers by the sea.

On the east coast of Long Island, "Sabbath-Day Harbor" has long been a place of resort, and to those who have loitered here the long summer days through, year after year, every spot has its associations and interest, from the beach, dotted with the first summer cottages built on the island, to the Bluff which protects the harbor, with its bold sides and front. Coombs' Bluff stands boldly out into the bay, raising itself one hundred and forty feet above tide water; the highest land excepting Warren's Mountain, at the south end, on the fourteen miles of undulating surface of the island. This bluff forms a natural breakwater for the harbor, which curves in on the western side of the bluff and up into the land till it forms a firmly-sheltered harbor, for a fleet of small vessels. Here the ancient fishermen came to lie at anchor and keep the quiet rest of the Lord's day, naming it in their quaint style "Sabbath-Day Harbor." Here came the first summer visitors, for a day or a week, to watch the sunrise over the bluff. Wearied with the bustle of towns, their first sweet sleep is broken by the very stillness, then a bird's sleepy note recalls a sense of life, next a consciousness of listening for other sounds; a gleam of twilight through the open window; the dip of an oar at a long distance, but coming nearer with such rhythm that it is just the even pulse of nature, which with each beat brings more of the day; rosy light breaks the eastern sky and spreads low and high over Cape Rosier's long outline till the heavens are glowing and the water spreads out from the shores of Castine and the cape to the corresponding ones of bluff and beach, a mass of moulten color. The stillness; the shadows in the harbor; the gorgeous sunrising above the headland, into the glowing day, filled with the life-tonic of salt sea air, no words can picture.

The day is done, the sun has gone down behind the western mountains of Camden, leaving billows of gorgeous crimson and silver and blue above, and a repetition of all this color in the sea. As the “curtain from unseen hands” falls down, all turn to send their eyes across the bay for the beacon light of Eagle Island. The stars come out, one and another, and another, until never were the heavens so luminous; never the stars so numerous. The moon comes up out of the sea beyond the Cape and sends her beams, a widening way of shimmering light, to shore.

To those who have dwelt here, while the June blossoms faded, and the fragrant wild rose budded, bloomed and brightened every wayside, covered every heap of rocks, or appropriated all neglected field corners and decaying stumps, born to bloom and blush unseen by the thousands and then fall to give place to the golden harvest of September; there are no sights more beautiful, no associations more heartful. Here they have truly lived, the fathers and mothers older and happier, with the wax and wane of these summer moons, the children grown to youths, then lovers, and still returning to spend their honeymoons, renewed each year in this dear spot.

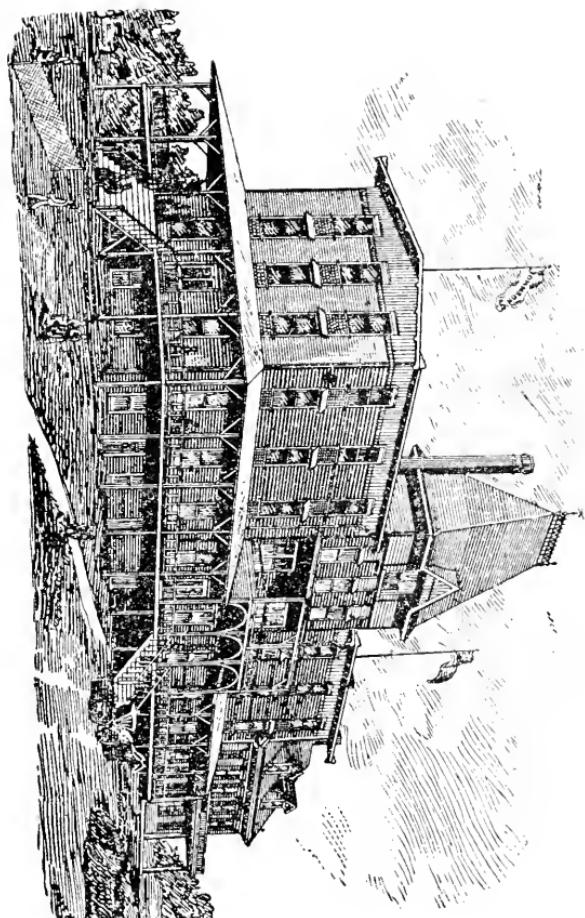

Here is the comfortable house named “The Islesborough,” built in 1885, as an extension to the original house, which was built in 1868 for a dwelling house, and to accommodate a few lovers of this harbor, who each year returned to refresh themselves with its beautiful views, sailing and healthful breezes. These friends returned bringing others so numerous that the proprietor was obliged to build this addition, which grew to be much larger than the original. At the present time it will accommodate about one hundred guests, and is a house much frequented by visitors at this charming resort.

VIEW AT BOUNTY COVE.

Two miles below Sabbath-Day Harbor lies "Bounty Cove." Perhaps the great gift of beauty suggested its name. This harbor, protected by a rugged wooded cliff, which extends far into the bay, forms one of the most placid seas. The sloping fields beyond with their crescent-shaped beach, suggest a paradise for the salt sea bathers.

Hewes' Point, which forms the barrier to the Atlantic waves, was the second spot appropriated by summer cotagers. About the shore of this point have clustered a number of picturesque cottages, with a background of groves and hills which charm all eyes. Nowhere on the island are there more lovely bits of landscape than at and from this point with its beautiful groves and bold shore. This land rises one hundred and thirty feet above the water, and on the highest part there is an observatory, than from which no more charming view of Penobscot Bay can be obtained. The wonderfully-diversified outline of the island first attracts, then the sea and land lie before one. Island and bay, mountain and sea, make up such completeness of beauty that one must take them as a whole before a single "bit" can be designated. A clear morning or evening light enjoyed from this spot will mark that day with a white stone. Every season, with the springing grass, comes the householder to his own, to which he adds artistic contributions of shrubs and flowers, to glow and brighten after the wild sweet briars have faded.

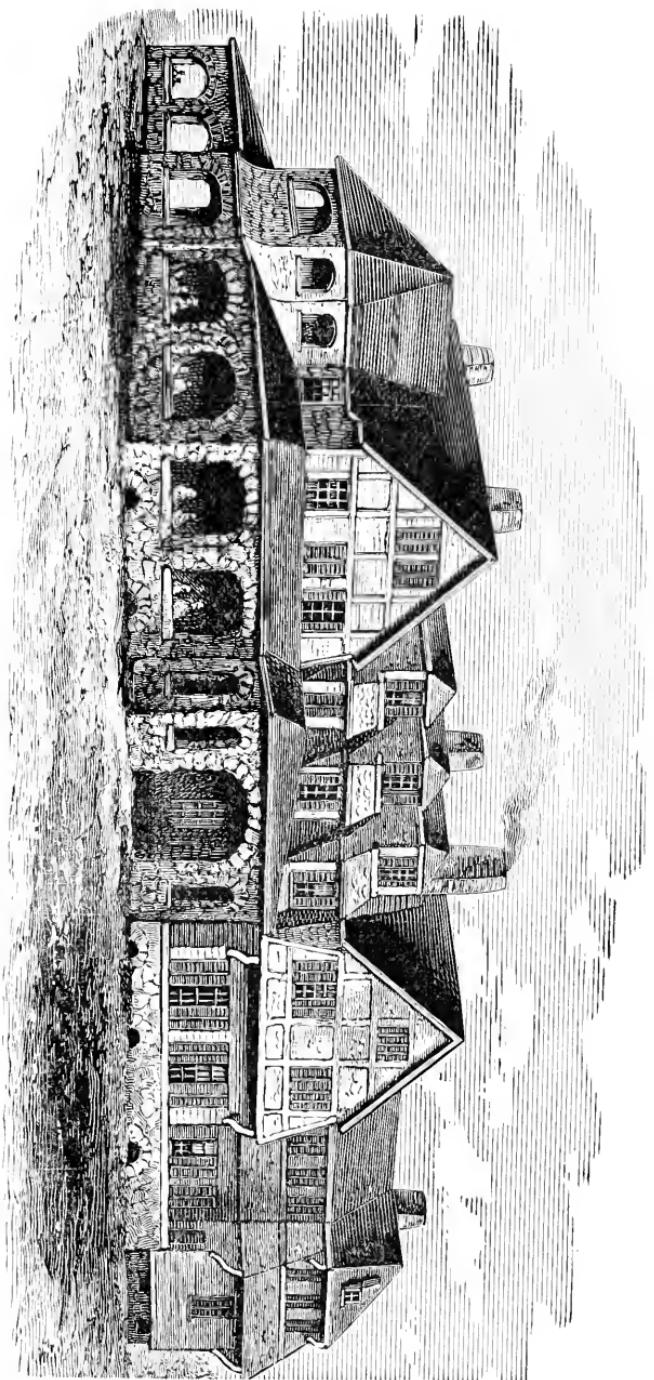

The western coast, with its broad bay dotted with islands varying in contour and extent, has its summer dwellers and lovers. On one of its points stands a white lighthouse, which adds interest to the scene from every view. So great a proportion of the inhabitants are those who go down to the sea in ships, all that pertains to their safety must be of special interest. The western bay is seldom without its fleet of sailing craft, than which nothing fashioned by man's hand is more beautiful. Through this western bay come the larger steamers to their ports on the opposite shores of Camden and Belfast. These all add much to the panorama of sea and shore. A morning drive down the west coast of the island, when the sun is behind and eyes can stretch over islands and sea to the opposite shores and the long slopes and sharp peaks of Camden mountains, is an event to be remembered; a picture from which no line of beauty can be missed.

If there is one spot more perfect than all others, it is Gilkey's Harbor, from the old farm-house known as the "Ames place." The house stands alone, and elevated about a hundred feet above the water, and a thousand feet from it, with the rolling greensward stretching down to the quiet sea below. The upper part of the harbor is protected by the long arm of Grindle's Point, on which stands the lighthouse, and the lower part by an archipelago of islands, thus securing a safe harbor for ships of any size. Across the western bay the Camden mountains, flooded by sunlight, define the horizon line, and hem in this pacific sea and set the perfect picture.

This farm, with much adjoining territory, has been purchased by the Islesborough Land and Improvement Company, which has opened new roads for driving to different points of interest and beauty through the southern half of the island. The larger part of the land of this section is high and slightly, with groves of evergreen trees, both along the indented shores and covering a large part of the interior.

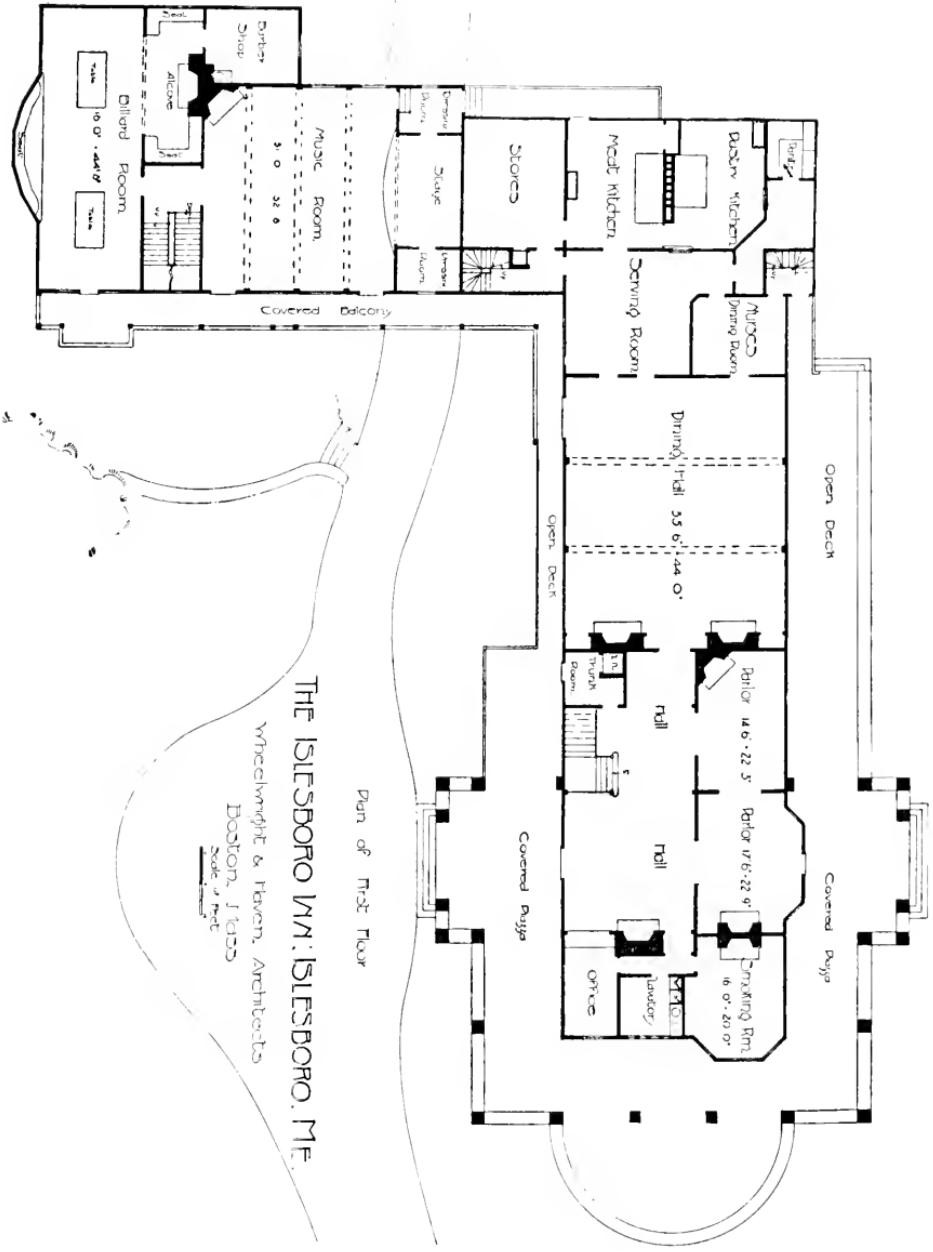

From the "Narrows," about midway of the island, where it is nearly bisected at high water, the land is narrower and cut deeply by bays and inlets on either side. The most picturesque of these is Dark Harbor, on the east side. Here the Land and Improvement Company have erected "The Islesborough Inn," on a charming height, which overlooks on the west Gilkey's Harbor, the slumbering islands, and the western bay with its passing fleet of sailing craft and steamers. The views from the east are over the numerous islands of the lower Penobscot Bay, including the justly-famed Isle au Haut,—whose shores are washed by the unbroken waves of the Atlantic—the larger and smaller Deer Isles, and many smaller and more neighborly islands. More easterly, only four miles across the bay, stretches Cape Rosier, and over it the mountains of South-West and Bar Harbors are prominent landmarks.

This fine house, in its situation and appointments, is not surpassed in New England, and its guests only depart with the breath of autumn to return with the summer sun. Already there are fine residences erected in many directions, on most desirable locations, but where all is so complete, it is only the individual taste which determines the location. Not only is the scenery beautiful, but by healthful sanitary arrangements made by the Land Company the sewerage and water supply are perfected. It is quite as impossible to represent perfectly this desirable house, the improvements made on the lands, while nature still is kept in charming simplicity, as it is to faithfully present the whole beauty of Long Island.
